Call for inquiry in North east

By Raymond Perman Labour Staff

A strong appeal for an inquiry into the affairs of the Labour corty in the North-east was made yesterday by Mr Dan McGervey, president of the boilermakers union and a former member of the party national executive.

A motion calling for an inquiry is to be proposed by Mrs Joan Maynard, a member of the Labour Party executive, to the annual meeting on May 18 of the Northern Regional Council of the party at Newcastle. Writing in his union journel, Mr McGarvey said that the executive of the Amalgamated Society of Boilermakers. Shipwrights. Blackmakers, Shipwrights, Black-smiths and Structural Workers had decided to support the

"The time has now surely arrived to stop the double-talk by those within the Labour Party in the North-east of England and at national level",

Mr McGarvey criticized the decision to expel from the party Mr Edward Milne, now inde-pendent Lahour MP for Blyth, and Mr Ronald Evers, the northern regional organizer of the party, for saying that the demand for an inquiry was certain to be defeated.

"The decision to expel Eddie Milne from the Labour Party was one of the most stupid deci-sions that I can remember". be "The helief in the North east is that all this happened he was an bonest man, and I am inclined to agree with

"The serious part of this whole issue is the question which is generally being asked: Is there a mafia in the North-east Labour Party? I must say that in my experience any time a particular issue is raised a cloak of secrecy drops and the silence on the issue is deafening."

Mr Milne said last night that the feeling was growing in the North-east that Mr Short should resign as deputy leader of the Labour Party, and that was a viewpoint he shared. He told a meeting in his constituency that the disclosed association herween Mr Sbort and Mr T. Dan Smith demanded nothing less than an immediate state-ment in the Commons, which could be questioned by MPs.

He said the party should give the full facts surrounding the payment of £35,000 to Mr Smith's companies for public relations work in the early relations work in the early Day Mr Hyde was found lying in men were returning bome from 1960s. About three hours after the incident two young British soldiers in plain clothes were shot dead by police officers in co Armagh, about 20 miles from Portadown. The Army and the Government both said that the

that one of the dead soldiers, whose photograph appeared in newspapers two days later, was identical with the man who had attempted to abduct the loyal-

The local suspicion that there had bean some Army involve-ment scarcely diminished when the Portadown police rook a photograph of one of the dead soldiers to Mr Williams's bome and asked him if he could identify the man. Mr Williams, who had made a statement to the police immediately after the incident, said that it was the gunman in the Golden Hind.

The Portadown police made further inquiries from the Army and discovered that neither of the two soldiers who died early on March 20 could have been at Portadown at 9.45 on the previous evening. The Army driver who went to Aldergrove airport on the 19th to collect the soldier identified by Mr Wil-liams had waited for another passenger and had delayed his return to Armagh until late in the night.

Not sure who was responsible, the Portadown UVF suggested that it might have been the Army, but said that an armed UDA man had been sitting near Mr Williams in the lounge bar and had not drawn his gun when the abduction took place. The police concluded that the UDA may have been respon-sible. But it now appears that, in spite of the RUC's contention, and although neither of the soldiers who later died could possible have been present, there was a plain-clothes Army patrol of three soldiers in the Edgarstown area of Portadown on the evening of March 19.

was tabled. The debate had done nothing to abate their disquiet.

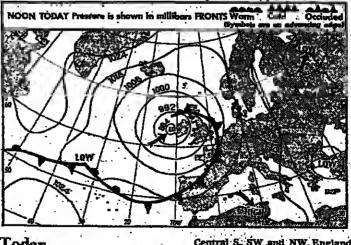

Disappointment was expressed that the Minister of Agriculture had not gone some way to meet them on points of disagreement left after the annual review and the latar talks in Brussels. The main topics, however, were beef and pigs and the position in which some farmers, particularly younger men, have been placed as a result of their losses.

On pigs, they wanted the direct payment introduced at tha end of March to continue at tha sama level after the end of May, pending new arrangements. For beef they wanted a rise in the guide price to what it would have been under the original transitional EEC arrangements, with a guarantee payment to cover any shortfall. That would not cover producers' present losses, but it would put a bottom in the market and do something to restora confidence. Otherwise, they suggested, there would be a cut in the production of pigmeat and beef. The minister had said that consumers would pay only what they could afford. The farmers replied that producers could afford to produce.

1651 Mr Heath attacks Labour appeasement' policy

olitical Staff

Mr Heath, Leader of the Oppoition, went back to the first rinciples of the Conservative 'arty last night with a challengog declaration of a " charter for he people ".

His proposals made in deliver-ng the Iain Macleod memorial acture were based on policy onsultations he and his shadow linisters have been baving since be Cooservatives lost the last lection.

Mr Heath also rose to the critisms of some of his supporters hat the Opposition is not being ggressive enough. "We will ggressive enough. "We will not make it easy for the minority abour Government to cut and un before the people in the ountry understand clearly the eal consequences of the Labour Fovernment's policies ", he said.

"This needs a steady; nerve ind a steady nerve is one of the jualities which the Conservative arry has to offer the country. We must say to people in Britain: Look what bappens wheo a government gets into a position where one section of he community alone is dominat-og its policy

"Alinority governments may come and minority governments will most certainly go, though to; by the frivolous, indeed childish antics of the members of the Liberal Party in the House of Commons."

The charter for the people ust establish the Conserva-tres aims for everyone in the tountry, he said. For those at work there was clearly the right to work without being unfairly. dictated to, by either employer, or union: the right to a fair and decent reward without unfair and harsh taxarion of income and savings: the right to a voice of the running of their firm or compulsory list of interests to be allowed to get on without facing the envy and bitterness of others.

Mr Heath continued : " To indistry we offer the right to make a fair profit. Unlike Labour, we understand industry, we know what makes it work. We appreciate the obvious fact of business life that without profit there can be no investment. And without investment there can be no jobs and no future."

One of the highest priorities of the next Conservative Gov-ernment would be to see that every family in the land should have the chance and the right to buy its own home. Mr Heath said that in the past the individual had often had to be protected from the pressures that big companies could bring to bear on him, and the Conservative Party had played an bonourable role in the regular revision and effective company "But we all know in our bearts that in recent times the pendulum has swung the other way, and that the interests of the individual and the interests of the nation as a whole now. need support against over mighty unions. ciples: respect for the freedom of the individual and support for those standards of behaviour without which freedom declined into anarchy. "It cannot be beyond the capacity of a powerful and sophi-cicated country like our own to cradicate finally those areas of powerty which still disgrace us." Proper respect and support must be given to those who created the national wealth. 3 There shall be set up a select committee of the House which shall, within the shortest reasonable period; consider the matters arising out of this proposal and recommend to the House the detailed composition of the register, the method of its operation, and the sanction to be applied to a member in default of his obligations in this matter.

Although there can be no doubt that within the next week or two the Commons will over-whelmingly agree to the creation of a register of financial interests, mainly because of the acute embarrassment of MPs arising out of vecent publicity. arising out of recent publicity, there will still be warm argu-ment on both sides of the House that the Government's proposal goes too far or not far enough.

Mr Heath and the Shadow Cabinet are known to accept that a register would be beneficial to MPs, if only because it would curb unpleasant disclosures of financial interest. Nor does Mr Heath see an issue of principle in whether the register is com-pulsory or voluntary. But some rank-and-file Conservatives certainly see a register as an invasion of privacy, and therefore a matter of principle. Others contend that any form of sanctions for non-disclosure might come between a member and the constituency that

On the Labour side, there are many MPs who would want the scope of the register to be broadened to cover political and parliamentary journalists, who of course are not under contract to the service of Parks to their newspapers. What sanc-tions should apply to them if they are found guilty of non-disclosure? There is also a demand here and there that if the House of Commons has a register, then the House of Lords must fall into line, although in practice the Commons cannot create rules for the Lords.

Much reference will be made in the Commons debate on the on the Commons debate on the Government proposal to the find-ings of the Straoss committee, which examined the question of declariog MPs' interests. It came down against a register of came down against a register of interests, with a Liberal MP dis-senting, and suggested a tighten-ing of the existing practice whereby members declare an interest when they speak in

The Strauss committee went no farther than to propose a new House resolution "that it is con-House resolution "that it is contrary to the usage and derogatory to the dignity of this House that a member should bring forward by speech or question or advocate any Bill, motion, matter, or cause for a fee, payment, retainer or reward, direct or indirect, which he has received, is receiving, or expects to precise."

The probability is that Mr Heath and the Sbadow Caldiet will give the Conservative ranks and file a free vote on the issue. On the Lahour side, there promises to be a three-line whip, simply hecause a compulsory register is being made a decision of the PLP.

Mr Short, Leader of the House of Commons, yesterday with-beld confirmation, publicly and beld confirmation, publicly and privately, of reports that he volunteered to stand down from the chairmanship of the Committee of Privileges when it meets next week to open an inquiry into allegations by Mr Joseph Ashton, Labour MP for Bassetlaw, that some Labour backbenchers are available "for hime"

In the House, during questions about next week's business, be replied to Mr Heath that be had read press speculation. He repeated that "there is no reason in fact or in my conscience" why be should not play a full part in the committee. He then confirmed his comment of a week ago: that it was for the committee to elect its own chairman, and "whoever is chairman will have my full support".

In the view of Mr Albert Spanswick, general secretary of the Confederation of Health Service Employees, "nurses are much more ready to have a go industrially".

On Monday a delegation of 44 from the Royal College of Nursing, will see Mrs Castle, Secretary of State for Social Services. When that was announced several days ago a few bundred nurses were expected to turn up at the Henrietta Place headquarters of the college to give the delegates a send-off. By yesterday nurses were expected to turn up in thousands, The college has made provisional arrangements with the police for them to march to Hyde Park to await news of the result of their delegates' meeting with

The royal college. would never support strike action and unions such as the Confederation of Health Service Employees and the National Union of Public Employees, which have about 70,000 nurse members each, would be unlikely to do so.

But more and more nurses are

But more and more nurses are seeing a difference between industrial action and strike action. The sort of action they might increasingly take, if they have to, would be to ban excess working hours, to refuse to fill in for a senior nurse or to take over the daties of another grade, and to take part in short token stoppages.

They might also refuse to in a pay revaluation, work with agency nurses, who because of various phearm between 80p and £1 an bour comes policy it has no against the 57p gross an hour for a staff nurse.

The trade unions say more nurses are joining them. Both the Confederation of Health the Confederation of Health Service Employees and the National Umon of Public Em-ployees report several thousand more nurse members as a result of recruiting campaigns. Mr Griffiths thinks that if a significant number of nurses-would turn to the trade unions

Much confusion was caused in the profession by the recent announcement that £18m is to be spent as a first step towards implementing the recommenda-tions of the Briggs report on nurse education.

How that money is to be divided among nurses responsible for education has still to be worked out. The royal college at once pointed out that the money has nothing to do with the general claim for better pay for the profession as a whole. In January, 1972, nurses pur

By Philip Howard A grand exhibition illustrating the life of Sir Winston Churchill, from ancestry and the cradle to the solemn and subsequent secular canonization, opens today as the principal commemoration of the center-ary of his birth. As with most activities of the remarkable Churcbill family, it is ambitious, unique, and superbly staged with no expense spared.

The "fine rooms" of Somer set House, exquisitely decorated and ceilinged by Sir William Chambers as the original bome of the Royal Academy, have been reopened to the public for the exhibition after nearly 150 years of bureaucratic occupa-ion by the Registrar General. The bundreds of exhibits col-lected from all quarters cover not only the battles, triumphs, world crises and high politics of Sir Winston, but also bis foibles, sense of mischief and even a ew warts and all. The exhibition is divided among six large and handsome rooms and almost completely obscures their decoration.

The first illustrates Churchill's beritage and encestry from the Duke of Mariborough and his termagant Ducbess, Sarah, to Winston's birth in 1874.

The second room covers Winston's early life up to 1913 with objects as various as the Mauser and sword he carried into the last great cavalry charge in history at Omdurman and the gold-headed malacca cana that King Edward gave him as a wedding present.

Room three describes the First World War and the years afterwards in the wilderness. Room four has oddments, hibelots and Churchill's beroes, including the favourite bust of Napoleon that sat on his desk or many years.

Room five opens with a shock as a life-size cut-out of a demonic photograph of Hitler with Churchill looming over his shoulder. It has everything about the last war,

Room six contains tributes, bomage, portraits, and the only authentic combined painting by both Churchill and the School

The exhibition will be open from today until September 30, 10am to 7pm on weekdays, 2.30pm to 7pm on Sundays. Admission is 50p, or 25p for children or old age pensioners. Proceeds will go to the two national memorials to the grand old man, Cburchill College, Cambridge, and the Winston Churchill Memorial Trust,

Council on Tribunals urges faster handling of planning appeals

By Our Legal Correspondent

Growing delays in the disposal of planning appeals are causing much disquiet and fundamental solutions must be found, the Conneil on Tribunals says in its annual report, published yester-

The situation had deteriorated sharply since 1970 in England and Wales, where from 1971 to 1972 the number of planning decisions taken by local planning authorities had increased from 463,000 to 615,000, and the appeals against those decisions from about 10,000 to just over 15,000. At the end of 1972 there were 13,000 appeals outstanding, but that figure bad risen to nearly 18,000 by July 31, 1973.

The average time taken to dis-pose of appeals in England dacided by the Secretary of State after an inquiry had risen, in the 12 months from May, 1972, to May, 1973, from 47 weeks to 60 weeks, and appeals decided by the Department of the Environment's inspectorate from 33 to 44 weeks. Delays in appeals decided withour an inquiry but on written representations had shown similar increases. The department had consider ably expanded its inspectorate, and measures had been taken to speed the handling of appeals. But more fundamental solutions might have to be found.

The council, which acts as an advisory body and watchdog on administrative tribunals and inquiries, draws attention to the low proportion of women serving on tribunals. It points out that a number of appropriately quali-fied or experienced women were not pursuing a career, and a much higher proportion of those women than men might be able to undertake public service such as sitting on tribunals.

Not enough was being done to tap the resources of suitable women. More efforts should be made by the bodies that recommended tribunal members to in include women in their lists. Annual Report of the Council of Tribunals for 19/2-73 (Stationery Office, 34p).

Lord Annan to head university inquiry By Our Education Corres

Essex University has appointed Lord Annan, Provost of University College London, to head an inquiry into the troubles at Essex. A hundred students were arrested by the police at the end of last term.

But the appointment is not likely to be approved by the students. Miss Patricia (Rusty) Davis, president of the students union, said: "This will certainly cause more trouble at the university. Lord Annan was chairman of the academic planning committee which beloed to ning committee which helped to set up the university. He is there-fore being asked to sit in judgment on himself.

Mr John Randall, president of the National Union of Students, said: "To ask one vice-chaocel-lor to investigate occurrences that many people believe to be the fault of another vice-chancellor is tanzamount to bringing out a bucket of white-wash."

It was "a very shortsighted decision that will not end the deadlock at Essex".

Family killed by gas blast in home

From Our Correspondent

An inquiry, was demanded yesterday into a gas explosion that destroyed a bouse in the Forest of Dean, Gloucestershire, killing a widow and her two children. The house, at Clements End, near Coleford, was not connected to the mains gas supply. Late on Wednesday night Miss Theresa Baker, aged 23, tele-phoned to the gas board and complained of a strong smell of gas at her home. Workmen arrived, but left before 3 am. A few minutes before 8 am an explosion, heard up to five miles away, destroyed the house and left nothing standing above three feet high. Flames up to 10ft high were still leaping from the ground two hours later. Debris from the house was found hanging on telegraph wires nearby.

Mrs Isabel Baker, aged 54, was brought from the rubble with severe injuries and died later in hospital. The bodies of her children, Theresa, a local office worker, and Kevin, aged 14 years found later.

14, were found later. Mr Michael Jenkins, of Clements End, a friend of the family, said he had consulted a solicitor and would be calling for an inquiry into the cause of the explosion.

A gas board statement said a full investigation was under way. "While at this stage, it appears likely that the explosion occur-red as a result of the ignition of a buildup of gas, the precise circumstances in which this happened remain to be deter-mined, it said.

An emergency gang had gone to the scene and traces of gas-were found in the road but not-in the house. "Preparations were made for further attention to be given to the matter first thing this morning. The equip-ment was left at the roadside for this purpose."

His LORDSHIP said that Racal of Bracknell, Berkshire, were substantial government contractors employing about 300 hourir paid, 100 weekly paid and 230 monthly paid employees. Annual wage reviews were implemented on July 1 each year. In April, 1973, Racal were losing their work force at an alarming rate to compenitors. The wages paid by them had been frozen by the Counter-Inflation (Temporary Provisious) Act, 1972, at the levels fixed in July, 1972, at the levels fixed in July, 1972, and Racal looked for some way in which they could meet their employees' demands to match the wages paid by other employers in the district. Because they were government. by other employers in the district.

Because they were government contractors, Racal concluded that they could increase wages by virtue of the Fair Wages Resolution of 1946. Accordingly they gave increases to their hously, weekly and monthly paid employees which they reported to the Pay Board. The board objected. It was with the construction of the Fair Wages Resolution that Racal's application was concerned.

Resolution that Racel's application was concerned.

The Price and Pay Code under the Counter-Inflation Act was brought into effect by the Counter-Inflation (Price and Pay Code) Order on April 1, 1973. There were exceptions to the pay limits there laid down, and by paragraph 134 the Fair Wages Resolution provided: " 1(a) The contractor shall vay rates of wages and observe bours and conditions of labour not less favourable than those established for the trade or industry in the district where the work is carried out by machinery of negotiation or arbitration to which the parties are organizations of employers and trade unions representative respectively of substantial proportions of the employers and workers engaged in the trade or industry in the district; (b) in the absence of any rates of wages, hours or conditions of labour so established the contractor shall pay rates of wages and observe bours and conditions of labour which are not less favourable than the general level of wages, bours and conditions observed by other employers whose general circumstances in the trade or industry in which fibe contractor is engaged are similar."

Racal had submitted that clause 1(a) was not applicable to them and that therefore they were entitled to raise their raises of wages to the general level of wages observed by other employers in like circum-

employees were conterned, and that as, in Joly, 1972, they were already paying rates of wages in excess of the standard set by clause 1(a), no further increases were per-mitted by virtue of the Fair Wages

Resolution.

Evidence had been produced of the circumstances in industry surrounding the passing, not only of the Fair Wages Resolution of 1946, but also of its predecessors in 1891 and 1949, and of a House of Lords Sciect Committee report on the sweating system which immediately preceded the 1891 resolution, together with a report of the Rair Wages Committee of 1906 commissioners of the Treasury to inquire into the working of the 1891 resolution.

The present appeared to be the Evidence showed that working of the 1891 resolution.

The present appeared to be the first occasion on which a court had been called upon to construct a Bouse of Commons resolution. Counsel for both sides accepted that the same principles of construction should be applied as governed the construction of statutory legislation, and the parliamentary history of legislation was not a permissible sid. But the words of the 1946 resolution had to be given the meaning attached to them in 1946, and it was against the 1946 background of industrial conditions that the resolution had to be constructed.

Racal were members of the Engimar the resolution had to be construed.

Racal were members of the Engineering Employers' Federation and most of their work force belonged to unions who were members of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions. An agreement of Angust 18, 1972, between the federation and the confederation provided for national minimum rates of wages for engineering workers. The Pay Board had submitted that the rates fixed by that agreement were within clause 1(a), and as Racal were already paying more than those rates, no further increases were permissible.

Counsel for Racal bad submitted

Counsel for Racal bad submitted that clause 1(a) applied only to dis-trict rates of wages and that a trict rates of wages and that a national agreement did not come within the clause unless the rates of wages fixed were specifically adopted in or for the district. His Lordship did not so read the language. A national agreement applied to all districts, and there was no reason for excloding them from clause 1(a). Then, it was said, history showed that clause 1(a) was only intended to apply to district lates and the clause should be so construed.

The history, in balef, was that a 1998 committee of sendor civil servants reported that although that 1891 resolution did not refer to a rate of wages paid in a district, it had been interpreted by government departments as obliging the contractor to pay the rate of wages current in the district in order to secure that the wages paid for government work were those ordinarily paid by good employers to competent workmen in each trade in the district where the work was carried out. The form of the 1909 resolution spelt out the interpretation of the 1891 resolution already adopted by government departments and showed the contractor. ston of the 1891 resolution already adopted by government departments and showed that collective bargaining between unions and employers was beginning to make an impact upon wage patterns, although almost all leuch wage negotiations took place at district level. More than 400 Britons today joined the bereaved of 17 other countries to pay last bomage to tha victims of the worst disaster in civil aviation history. It was the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC10 on March 3 just after leaving Paris, in which more than 350 people were killed.

At the Thiais cemetery the Britons were among a thousand people who took part in a Christian ecumenical service followed by similar Jewish, Muslim, Buddhist and Hindu rites.

Herr Brandt's detractors find fertile ground for sowing seeds of rumour

From Dan van der Vat

Two tendencies in the Germao national character, if there be such a thing, are now locked in combat for the last word oo the personality of Herr Willy Brandt, the fallen Chancellor.

On the left, which is to say within Herr Brandt's Social. Democratic Party, a new legend of the "stab in the back" is being feverishly developed. On the right, among the opposition and the newspapers which support it, there is Schadenfreude, accompanied by the not altogether unprece-dented or unrelated interest in kicking a man when he is down.

Today several newspapers and magazines bave begun re-tailing the rumours about Herr Brandt's private life which have been common, not to say very common, gossip bere for years, particularly in the last fort-night since the so-called "spy in the Chancellery" was

Religious party holds up formation of new Israel Cabinet

From Eric Marsden Jerusalem, May 9

While the attempt by Dr Kissinger, the American Secre-tary of State, to arrange a Syria-Israel diseagagement agreement steals the limelight, a related political drama is heing played out in Jerusalem—the intricate negoriation by Mr Yitzhak Rabin to form a new Government to succeed that of Mrs Golda Meir.

Mr Rabin, a former Chief of. Staff and Ambassador in Washington, is Minister of Labour in the present Government: When be accepted President Katzir's invitation to present a Cabinet after being chosen by the Labour Party as its Prime Minister-designate, Mr Rabin said confidently that he hoped to submit a list of ministers well within the three weeks allowed to him.

However, he has found the Cabinet-forming process more difficult than he expected and two weeks have passed without result. If necessary, Mr Rabin can ask for another 21 days when the present mandate runs out on May 17, but he is redoubling his efforts to complete his task before then.

The delay in setting up a new Government is causing criticism. The Israel constitution provides that when a Prime Minister has resigned the outgoing Govern-ment should continue in office unril a new one is set up.

Many people feel it is wrong that a caretaker Government. including ministers who are held and the demand for to blame for mistakes leading to general election this the October war, should be take growing stronge tuture, such as where to redraw the border on the Golan Heights. Mr Menahem Begin the Opposition leader has repeatedly declared that a Government which has resigned has no authority to commit the nation to withdraw from occupied terri-

Mr Rabin's chief difficulty is that although he set out to renew the coalition between the Labour Alignment, the National Religious Party and the Independent Liberals, the NRP so far bas rejected all his invitations to serve in the Government. He needs its 10 seats to give him a comfortable margin, with 68 out of the 120 Knesser members.

The NRP fears that a Govern ment led by Mr Rabin may he too susceptible to remarks made by him recently when he hinted at the possibility of the return to Arab control of Ramallah, near Jerusalem and Erzion, a group of Jewish settlements near Benklehem.

Labour Party leaders would prefer a Government with a majority, bowever amall. They maintain that in spite of the protest movements and criticism which have developed in the past few months the party won a mandate last December to rule for four years and that Mr Rabin is entitled to serve our that term if he aucceeds in forming a Government

This view is becoming more and more unpopular in Israel and the demand for another

Sensitive issue of automation threatens to eliminate most of the printers' jobs on main newspapers

Battle in New York composing rooms

From Peter Strafford New York, May 9

A quiet, but determined test of strength is now under way in New York between the main daily newspapers and the printers' union. It centres on the seositive issue of automation in the composing room, and the fact that it is good for newspaper econumics but cuts out most of the jobs held by printers.

So far, none of the three papers—The New York Times, the Daily News and the Posthas tailed to come out. There appears, in fact, to be a general determination to avoid another damaging strike of the sort that that killed so many New York papers in the past.

But things moved nearer to a showdown last Monday eight when the Doily News, which has lost a great deal of advertising in recent weeks as a result of a printers' go-slow, decided it had enough. It switched to a new automated process by which t can print without the printers. The printers immediately set up picket lines outside the building in an attempt to stop the paper coming out but the other unions crossed them. Since then, the Doily News, smaller and with a different look 10 its pages, has continued to he printed on a temporary basis on the new machines by non-union staft.

The question now is how long both sides will hold out. Mr Bertram Powers, the forceful leader of the New York printers. maintains that the Daily News cannot hold out for long, and that the test will come when it has to produce the big Sunday in work the new equipment, papers. But he himself is not while others would have to be being supported by his parent union, the International Typo-graphical Union, and this means that his memhers are deprived of strike henefits. The dispute has its roots back in 1970, when a new three-year contract was worked out between the newspapers and all the erally regarded as a generous settlement, which gave the unions substantial wage increases without extracting any undertaking from them about automation, an oversight which the managements came to regret later on. Next time round, therefore, they resolved to do better, and they have made automation the main issue ever since negotiations for a new contract got under way early last year.

They have told the printers that they will guarantee them iohs for the rest of their worklog lives, but that in return they want unlimited rights to introduce automation into their conposing rooms.

The printers replied that they accepted automation and the abolition of jobs that it entailed. But they wanted much firmer guarantees than they had been nffered, and they wanted the papers in pay the printers bonuses as incentives to retire.

Both sides recognize that once new automatic equipment is introduced. virtually all the printers' johs, as they exist at present will disappear. Some of the printers would he retrained while others would have to be transferred to other jobs, probably very unlike what they had been doing.

The negotiations have now been under way, on and off, for well over a year. They have been hrought to a pitch by the printers' go-slow, and by the response by the Daily News, but Mr Powers said this week that battle had only been joined. He did unt expect the crucial test for some weeks.

Mr Powers was himself very much involved when the Daily News made its switch to automated equipment this week. He was in the composing room when the first magnesium plates were hrought in from the new process. The printers refused in handle them, and he himself twisted one in his hands so that it became unnuable.

The management called the police, and all the primers, some 200 at the time, were herded off the premises. Mr Powers and seven of the printers were taken to court, and charged with criminal trespass.

The New York Times and the Post have not heen involved in this particular dispute, since the printers have been concentrating on the Daily News. But the Times, which has automated coupinment installed and ready for use, has promised to belp the News if it runs into trouble, an undertaking taken to mean that it would print it on its own presses. This would almost cer-tainly provoke the printers into China and the Soviet Union ooth built up their forces to a ec; I number of 45 divisions n the border areas last year. But the likelihood of a Russian ittack on China this year is discounted io a new analysis published today.

The International Institute for Strategic Studies in its Strategic Survey 1973, refers to speculation that the Soviet Union, if it did want to attack China, would have to do it soon. After 15 thermonuclear tests, Chinese capabilities were near-ing the point where a "surgical strike" on their nuclear installations by the Russians could no longer be certain of success.

The institute says that evidence suggests a great deal of Soviet effort has been devoted to the construction of barracks family quarters, road and rail serinks and permanent training grounds near the border—all of which suggests a "garrison that the Russians could succeed. The Soviet leaders must also conclude, says the survey, that a Soviet ettack on China would damage their relations with the United States, cause a wave of anni-Soviet outbursts through-out the Third World, prove a out the Third World, prove a major setback to their European policies and bring about a rise in sympathy for China throughout the world. It would also rule out any chance of a pro-Russian government in Peking. When Mao Tse-tung goes, the Soviet leadership will undoubtedly try to influence Chinese policies, the institute predicts. Bot, it adds: "The evidence suggests that the Soviet Union can do little to prevent or delay can do little to prevent or delay the growth of China's strategic forces. She must ride out the Mao era and hope that the successor regimes will be either less bitterly anti-Soviet or less homogenous than the present

The institute believes that the Russians will continue to station e large permanent garrison in the Far East to underline their strength.

It'll take more than one energy crisis to stop our railways running.

Oil. as we now know to our cost. is unlikely ever to be cheap again. It may not always be in plentiful supply either.

So we've got to develop a transport system that doesn't depend on it.

Which is just what we are doing by electrifying our railways.

Electric locomotives run on any source of energy: oil, coal, nuclear or gas.

The advantage for Britain is obvious. If one fuel becomes scarce or too expensive. a vital part of our rail system can be switched to another.

Electrification today means we won't be stopped in our tracks tomorrow.

New system still costs too much among middle order players a difficult time of it. But that was a year or two ago. Against anything of any pace he is beginning to look good, and his stumping of Cook when Northamptonshire were trying to make up for lost time was certainly quick. Mushtag was another to be lost in the effort to get a move on. It seems to me that the new system of awarding hous points, with only four ou offer for batting, is unlikely to deter the early prodder or spare the middle order bassmen from having to slog in the closing overs of a first lunings. Milburn was another to be lost in this way. So was Sharp, caught at mid-on off a skier. It is fair to say. I think that of the eight Northamptonshire wickets to fall, five were the result of bassman chasing a honus point. From mid-off or mid-on, Boycott brought Yorkshire out of this part of the operation unscarhed. A problem he had was to decide who to put at first slip against the faster bowlers. Sharpe was ruled out by a damaged finger, Hampshire by his knock on the thumh and Old could not he there when he was bowling. When Virgin gave his only chance, Carrick, who was being tried there, unt it down. Carrick, with orthodox left arm spin, benefited from Northamptonshire's late fing. Two splendid straight sixes were hit off him by Mushtaq and Sbarp but he bowled ticely. Cope, with a new action to satisfy the examiners, looked to be missing the old one—Hutton could do with a new one, but for other reasons. Old had some lively overs, Nicholson one or two unlucky overs. It had not been a bad day for Yorkshire—until Boycott got out after tea. VORKSRIRE: First Imms 255 for $100 overs? R. G. Nevertbeless, it was a good morning for Lancashire. Beginning at 41, which had been scored at less than two to the over, David Lloyd and Wood took the score to 200, in a total of 65 overs. The Somerset crowd, if that is not too expansive a term, were severely critical of their side's bowling. But it was the weather which gave an edge to their complaints, just as it was the weather which took the edge from the bowlers fingers. Even Cartwright sometimes erred in length, though when he came on at the river end he might have had Lloyd caught at short leg. Close, for once, could not quite hold it. Lloyd was then in his 40s.

Mercer will give no prizes for running

The England football team to play Wales in Cardiff tomocrow will definitely be Joe Mercer's personal choice. The temporary team manager made that clear at last night's training period at Rochampton. "This will be Mercer's team", be said. "I have always dreamed of being England manager and in fact I was on the short list originally, but they preferred Alf Ramsey."

Mercer will not be continuing Sir Alf's tactics. Certainly the training, lasting about one hour, was lighthearted, in contrast to the serious vein followed by Sir Alf. Mr Mercer said afterwards: "I'm really going to enjoy the next six weeks. There will be seven matches and ideally all 22 players in the party will get a game." party will get a game."

when Mr Mercer announces the team this afternoon he will concentrate on quality. He said: "That, I think, is the most important point. Quality will always hring results. But success may not come immediately."

Mr Mercer added: "My main task is to make certain there is no tension." Ons of the main differences between Mr Mercer and his predecessor is on the subject of effort. He said: "No player will get a pat on the head for running. I expect them to do that automatically. It is quality of play I am looking for."

Mr Mercer, who sacked Bowles when he was at Manchester City four years ago, said he had spoken to the Queen's Park Rangers player as soon as he joined the party in London. "I've also won money on Bowles", said Mr Mercer. "My son het me 6—4 that Stan wouldn't turn up, but he's here."

Stan wouldn't turn up, but he's here."
He said he regretted ha was now tou nid to take over as permanent manager of the party: "Sir Alf picked a good one and I expect it to do well." Peters, the longest serving player in the party, said: "It was all so strange that Sir Alf was missing. All the players wish him well but we now have to concentrate on the forthcoming matches for we are all professionals in a professional game."

In the interim, the Duke of Edinburgh, the president of the International Equestrian Federation, and their secretary-general, Col Menton de Horne, have received telegrams from Lord Killamin stating that the decision, which would he taken at the Olympic Congress in Visuma next September, would on no account be retrospective. This was a relief to those who had feared for the men's and women's world championships, which take place in July at Hickstead and La Baule, respectively.

Lions Rugby Union side gave an impressive display of scrummaging here today when their coach, Sydney Millar, put his men through the second practice of their Southern African tour.

It was far from a really rigorous work-out, as the team manager, Alun Thomas, does not want to push the players too hard until they adjust fully to the climate. It began with the customary warm-up, during which Millar put the players through a series of sprinting, jogging and other exercises.

He then separated the backs and the forwards; and it was the forwards, led by the captain. Willie-John McBride, who particularly impressed local observers with their powerful scrum work. They worked hard at the set phases and gave attention to winning the balk from the loose.

The back line concentrated on getting the ball out to the wings as quickly as possible.

Laver lacks accuracy to beat Smith in WCT event

From Rex Bellamy Tennis-Correspondent Dallas, May 9

Newcombe, the favourite, will play Smith, the holder, in the semi-final round of the World Championship Tennis play-off series here tomorrow. The other match will pair Ashe or Borg with Nastase or Kodes,

This is the fourth time eight men this is the fourth three tables have assembled here to play for $42,000, the winner taking half, and this year's field is the strongest of the lot. They had to do well in 13 tournaments in order to qualify and in that sense this WCT title is an unrivalled test. The winner has and in that sense this WCT file is an unrivalled test. The winner has to prove that he can maintain a high level of performance over a long period. Then he has to reach a peak in this nerve-wracking climax. It is as if the top weight teams in the Football League had to play a knockout competition to settle any remaining arguments about their respective merits.

The sentimental favourite was the oldest and smallest competitor, Laver, twice runner-up, who was perhaps too eager to win the only big title that has eluded him. Smith took almost three hours to beat time 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 in a consistently close and thrilling contest that produced some great tennis hur, as a whole, was too patchy to he described as a great match. Laver had his chances but was not quite accurate enough to take them ("I didn't miss by a lot, hut I missed"). He also served 12 double-faults.

Smith probably played his best match since he was here a year ago. He was shrewd and solid, and boldly confident in going for his ground strokes and hitting them to a length. He also displayed an agility, touch and imaginative flair that only his best form can command. "Rod inspires me. This has been a patchy year for me and I feel pretty good about winning this big match".

In between his first and last service games, Newcombe conceded only nine points in 11 service games ("I couldn't serve much better than that"). Okker was demoralized and crushed by majestically powerful tennis.

Commenting on his filly after he had seen her unsaddled, Cole said that she is so far in front of his other two-yest-olds that she either bad to be very good or the rest were of no eccount. Amazing Maid is clearly very quick, indeed. She had her race sewn up Inng before they even reached the halfway stage, and understandably Cole now has his sights set firmly on the Queen Mary Stakes at Royal Ascot.

Amazing Maid was bought for his owner, Roy Strudwick, in the United States, together with her dam, Maid of Iron, for $40,000 (about £16,000) by the Bloodstock agent, Bill Macdonald. With hindsight, it was a good piece of business.

Coles, Tupling and Hayes in the lead at halfway stage

By Peter Ryde Goli Correspondent

Goli Correspondent

The lead changed hands in the second round of the Penfold golf tournament at Worthing yesterday. The three leaders at the halfway stage are all different from the four first round leaders; they are Neil Coies (67), Peter Tupling (66) and Dale Hayes (65).

It is a comment on the tack of challenge in the course that none of the leaders find it possible to draw away. Barnes and Hayes scored 65, the lowest so far, but no noe would be surprised if that score were beaten this week. To record of 64 niight even go, for there was Horton, who knows the course well, having five birdies in a row from the third in an outward half of 30.

Coles had a 75t putt for a hirdie half of 30.

Coles had a 75t putt for a hirdie to take the lead at the 18th, but it failed to drop. His 67 was not without hlemish. He had to work hard for a four at the short fifth after being plugged in a hunker, and he reckooed to have under-clubbed at the 18th, where he dropped another shot, and at the 18th, but he recovered these strokes with hirdie putts. It was his finish that stood between him and the outright lead. His two-iron to the 16th after a long drive—this must have been the toughest hole on the course—licked forward and ran on unchecked across the hard apron of the green and dnwn a hank.

He got that stroke back at the

the green and down a dank.

He got that stroke back at the 17th, where his four-iron was well judged and he holed from 20tt. His drive at the 18th was little short of a quick hook—due, he thought, to standing too far from the ball at the address—and he refruined from going for the green across the corner of the wood as a Nicklaus or a Welskopf, or any other maker of majestic strokes, might have done. I think it is necessary to know

Coles's golf well to savour it fully.

His wedge for example is not one of a glittering matched set, but one that took his fancy in a bartel outside a professional's shop in Jacksonville. That was in 1965; this year he thought the shaft was getting a little weak, so he changed it himself for a stiffer one, then seur it away to get it cleaned up. Oosthuizen, an overnight leader, hit too many loose shore to remain in the lead. His drive to the 16th fioished on the 15th fairway, and your correspondent had to jump high to allow the ball to pass safely between his legs. Hayes, of South Africa, kept mainly to par, but two eagles and two birdies made all the differ-two birdless made all the abrerence. A driver put him on the back of the eighth green and he holed the putt for his first eagle.

His secood came at the last bole, where he struck a four-fron to 6ft and holed the putt, Hayes is having his tonsila removed next week.
The old ariom of edit that the The old axiom of golf that the worse you feel the better you play was illustrated once again.

was illustrated once again.

Barnes matched Hayes's 65 and is now up with the pack. One would expect to be hearing from him this week for he lives ten minutes away. He bad birdies at two of the first three holes, which is not the customary way of huiding a score here, and was out in 32. You would not think to hear him talking of his second nine that he had broken 80, for he hit a number of loose shots, but his wedge and putter kept him going. Once again I missed Tunting and can only say that a young player who can lead the Open for one round, as he did three years ago, is capable of leading this one for two. His was not a great start, but holing our from a greenside bundled on a great transparent of the server of a graph two at the server. ker for an eagle two at the seventh must have made a world of dif-ference to him. Oosterbuis and Jacklin are still there and no doubt we shall be hearing from one or both of them again, but their performances show that in the chill conditions and with the uncertainty on the greens, conditions were not all that easy. Butler, another over-night leader, for example, took three putts from 3ft at the fifth, and the best way to play that hole was demonstrated by Peter Wil-cock, who hit the hall with a seven Iron straight into the hole

England need their best form to reach final

Madrid, May 9

England exceeded expectation by reaching the semi-final round of the European Cup bockey tournament, but a superb performance will be needed if they are to upset West Germany bere tomorrow. Spain, who just scrambled through their quarter-final match against France, have a similar task against The Netherlands.

a similar task against The Netherlands.
England are fielding the side that left the field 2—1 victors over Wales. In other words Whalley, who came on ss a substitute for Neale, will he one of the four strikers leaving Neale and Brookeman as substitutes. The experience of playing West Germany io their present mood is similar to the Herculean task of slaying the Hydra, for no soorer is one player cut down that another seems to appear. This proliferation in their assaults is brought about by the close support given to the mad with the ball, the effect being an easy flow as they switch positions at the point of attack.
England are under no illusions about the magnitude of their task

England are under no illusions about the magnitude of their task but if they cannot match the individual and collective skills of the Germaos they have the will to keep going to an age when hockey is being played at a faster pace than ever before.

Mest of England's hones are on Long who, with a neat crop nf seveo goals, is second only to Kruize, of The Netherlands, one of the most heautiful strikers of the hall, who has 12. Apart from his technical ability, Long has plenty of speed and as a striker of short corners has proved a worthy successor to Svehilk whn was not available this season. There will be heavy demands on the physical resources of England's two linkmen, Cotton. The captain, and Purdy, both of whom have been playing extremely well. Pinks is now full of confidence in the position of sweeper and we have seen some outstanding displays in the hack line by Whiraker, Blackmore and Freitae. On paper West Germany Inok unbeatable, but both Switzerland and Poland proved that the German defeoce is not invulnerable and there is no match that the physical resources of Eng-

German defeoce is not invulner, able and there is no match that cannot be swaved by the element of lock and the capacity for buman error. Atl the same I expect West Germany and The Netherlands to qualify for the final as they did in Brussels four years ago when West Germany won 3—1. But if England can at least take third place that would be a satisfactory achievement. achievement.

The Silent One (a) Studio One

Kid Blue belongs to the school of wry Western comedy-moral-ities which seem to characterize ities which seem to characterize the Seventies and take their descent from such prototypes as Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid and Little Big Man. The Westerner who comes (on foot) into town is an outlew who has thrown away his gun and settled to go straight, mainly because he is such a hopeless train robher ("what I stole wouldn't have made a pile no higher nor a dwarf could a jumped over"). He tries with desperate good will to make out among the upright citizens of Dime Box, Texas, in 1902: the bomicidal, racist sheriff who harasses the stranger almost as much as the stray Indians about town; the stray Indians about town; the customers who bully him in his humble job as barber's boy; the fellow-guests in the lodging house who moralise at him; the sweat-shop factory owner of the Great American Ceramic Novelty Company; his best frieod's respectable little Western wife, who inconsiderately rapes him.
He finds his soulmates are the other outcasts, the dis-possessed Indians win hope in their hefuddled way that Jesus may not only save their souls, but also restore their birthhut also restore their birthright, a barmy preacher who is busy inventing a flying machine, and a whore who emerges from his past to save him from respectability and hearten him to return to crime with one spectacular conp, a big wages smatch. The preacher's flying machine proves little belp in his getaway; but the Indians, their borses and the wilderness enable bim finally to escape the eoable bim finally to escape the respectable, who are last seen padding distantly after him, in the frowzy combinations in which they have been roused from their beds.

It is light and amiable and It is light and amiable and insignificant, written by Edwin Shrake in arch and stylised dialogue, and directed by James Frawley with a satirical appreciation of the myth and milieu of the West on the verge of civilization, and an evident delight in his performers, Denis Hopper (from East Rider) is a winoing Kid Blue, voluntarily tamed, suspending his experience and judgment in savouring, with increasing distaste, the new experience. Ben Johnson, who bas generally been subdued to genial roles, is the meanest of mean sberiffs; and Janice Rule, whose potential in the Forties style of femme fatale has been too much oeglected, is a trium-phant baritone Wild West

LSO/Ligeti Queen Elizabeth Hall William Mann

In a lecture, deliberately simple but highly informative, and a subsequent concert of his recent works, Gyögy Ligeti on Tuesday confirmed his status as the most sympathetic among progressive composers today. He was fortunate in the championship of the English Bach Festival and in tha performing advocacy of the London Symphony Orcbestra under Elgar Howarth, but it was Ligeti as man and artist wbo dominated the evening.

The concert included, wisely, two performances of his Clocks and Clouds, written last year for Graz. a fascinating work for female choir and orchestra which extends Ligeti's interest in close harmony, what he calls micropolyphony, so as to direct focus on individual musical line for solo female voices while the orchestra pursues familiar techniques of heterophooy, figures in unison, near-unison, and inde-pendently travelling step-move-

The animation of these musical lines, vocal or instru-mental, is the essence of Ligeti's musical creativity. He jars everything together in engaging euphony, very close-worked but the line, in this case given muscle by the chnrus's consonantal sounds, remains constant and communicative. The piece is about one group of ideas which works for animated and for static sounds; both are apt and appealing.

In Dead Cert, his first theatri-cal film since Ned Kelly and Hamet in 1970, Tony Richard-son has set out modestly to entertain. He bas made Dick entertain. He bas made Dick Francis's racing thriller into a melodrama crime mystery on the lines of Thirties Hitchcock—even to the Hitchcock trick of staging the big finale in a spectacularly actual setting: while Hitchcock used the Albert Hall and the dome of the British Museum, Dead Cert climaxes with the Grand National, ambitiously (thrugh to those observaor enough to mark the signs of summer, unseasonably) staged.

It is the tale of dirty work on the racecourse, with an almost-agentleman jockey (Scott Anthony) trying in run down the gang whose nobbling activities do not stop short at murder. Plausibility is subordinated to the dramatic scene (the National course, might seem an improbcourse might seem an improb-ably public place for a killing); and motives are often vague.

Appropriately the style is steeped in the manner of period melodrama, with big close-ups of villains reacting beavily and John Aldison's music providing its own unabashed dramatics. It is one thing of course to attempt a Hitchcock thriller and another, certainly the first time out, in he a Hitchcock. I have tried every kind of grape juice, and the one that produces the hest results for me is the Southern Vinyards hrand. Prices went up in March, so that your ordinaires are 12p the bottle instead of 10p. I recommend the specials and the superior juices, which work ont at from 13p the hottle or thereabouts, plus the cost of sugar (allow 1 lb per six bottles) and the tiny, thermostatic heater.

The Stylopbone, I learnt recently, was first sold in 1968, but I had never come across one until a few weeks ago. It was then I tried to play the Stylophone 350S. A curious instrument, this, which simulates a great many instrumental sounds and some sounds an orchestra cannot manage. The Stylophone is incredibly easy to play, and the effects it can achieve are legion.

By pressing control keys, you can mix strings with brass, and get pipe and woodwind sounds together. Foot pedals give you vibrato, and you can accompany records, amplifying them with your own created sounds. There is even a "decay" key to reproduce the eighteenth-century tone of a harpsichord. I can't play a note, but did wander from piccolo to bassoon, from trumpet to sax, and all by means

I admit that I couldn't be sure what the Stylophone was for, except for fun and amateurs. But I'm sure they tell me true when they say it sells to groups, party-goers and givers, Scout groups, and all sorts of associations and individuals because it doe make amateur enterraining sound less amateur. The price, £39.50, is not out of this world when you consider its versatility. • I have been getting three of the new, electrical, thermo-statically controlled fondue sets tried out. Sadly, in a way, the least elegant appears to be the best performer, so here it is. It seems to cook hetter and it does have the anvantage of being easy to clear away as soon as it is finished with. On this one, the Siemens, the base plate does not get ton hot to handle, whereas base plates on the other two do. There is a safety clamp with this, which is probably a good idea if the flex trails where it might trip someone and so be brought tumbling.

The base plate does, however, get slightly warm and it is designed to stand on top of the plates, taking the chill off the one just under it. The Siemens is in a green enamel or a copper-coloured finish, and in one size, with the hot plate that cradles the fondue bowl having a diameter of about 7in. Instant chedience to the heat control is the quality commended by my testing expert, who gave fondue parties to prove it. Made in West Germany, it is in a number of leading department stores—the Debenbams group, the House of Fraser group, the Lewis group and large electrical sbops—at around £16, including the six dipforks and with a recipe book of sweet and savoury dips.

New bread subsidy brings total to £52m: average family getting 60p benefit

MRS SHIRLEY WILLIAMS, Secretary of State for Prices and Consumer Protection (Hertford and Steveoage, Lab), said in a statement: The Government bave decided after consultations with representatives of the bakery industry to increase the rate of the bread aubsidy in order to prevent price increases of 1.5p on a large loaf end 0.5p on a small loaf that would otherwise occur on Monday, May 13, following notifications to subsidies including the new breed. The legislation be proposed would restore to the trade unions from April 6, 1972, the special tax relief they had enjoyed. These were provisions which the previous Government did not believe tha trade unions would lose whether or not they were registered on August 4, 1971.

The easy way out had been to register.

In most cases unious had exercised their right not to register in the industrial relations sense. This the industrial relations sense. This was a pity not only from the point of view of case of protecting provident funds but from that concerned, with good industrial relations and union members' interests. He had taken advice to make sure that even if a union decided not to register it could still protect its provident funds. He had seen no evidence succe that there had been any legal impediment to this protection.

We shall want some evidence (the continued) whether unions tried to protect their provident funds or rather that they did not deliberately neglect to try as part of a politically motivated programme of action to discredit the industrial Relations Act and to present it to the country and their members as something it never was.

Let us stop going on in this self-destructive way (he said) by taxing middle and high income taxing middle and high income comes more savagely than any major industrial country, and also preventing individuals from creating personal wealth by their own honest effort, skill, and tisk-taking. If we go on we shall get a drain of wealth-creating activity.

MR MICHAEL SPICER (South Worcestershire, C), in a maiden speech, said the middle classes had been disillusioned, disabused, and undermined by events over and undermined by events over the past 20 years. They were on the brink of revolt. They were ourraged by current events. The immediate reason was the rate of inflation running at around 20 per cent a year.

The middle classes could become the greatest adversary of democracy when whipped into fury either by national failure or by savage infiation. The middle classes, traditionally loyal and providing the dynamo of the country, were boiling over with anger and this explained the present electoral volatility.

MR PARDOE (North Cornwall, L) moved the Liberal amendment: "That this House declines to give a second reading to a Finance Bell which does nothing to stop the rate of inflation rising as a level which is a danger to democrate the contract three democrates." democracy, fails to protect those on lower incomes who suffer most on fower incomes who surfer most from inflation, and yet increases the danger of an unacceptable level of unemployment."

The Chancellor would say that if things went wrong he could change them in the autumn Budget. In fact, if he got things wrong now the autumn would be too late too do anything about it.

MR HUGH FRASER (Stafford and Stone, C) said they needed to get weath into the country to sustain the standard of living. There were some Labour MPs who were slightly deranged on these matters. They were politically xemophobic and fiscally zero-philiac, which meant they hated foreigners and loved to achieve a loss. (Conservative laughter.)

We have got a Chancellor red in not disconnected with the Government's electoral plans.

The country was entitled to ask that some regard should be paid to the price which the rest were being asked to pay for this flimsy, short-lived compact. What in essence was the compact supposed to be?

They were told it was fairness. They were told it was fairness. Fairness for whom? What was fair in the judgment of this Government was what powerful trade union bosses happened to think was fair at a perticular time. Medical evidence before the assize court, based on examinations before trial, was to the effect that lliffe was suffering from a depressive illness and the court made an order under section 60 of the Mental Health Act, 1959, for his detention in Broadmoor rogether with a restriction order under section 65 without limit of time. The effect of the restriction order was to make discharge from hospital subject to the Home Secretary's consent.

Patients suffering from depressive illness often make a quick recovery and by the time of liffe's admission to Broadmoor he showed no signs of overt depression. After a period of 21 mooths' observation of the patient in hospital the responsible medical officer reported that there had been no further signs of depressive illness or of aggression or violence since admission, and conditional discharge subject to supervision was recommended. This recommendation was supported by a second medical opinion from another consultant at Broadmoor.

After careful consideration of this advice and ell the circomstances of the case the Home Secretary's authority was given for conditional discharge from hospital, which took place on December 6, 1972. The conditions were that liffe should (i) reside at a stated address; (ii) be subject to supervision by a probation officer, and (iii) attend at a psychiatric out-patient clinic as directed by a consultant psychiatrist at Broadmoor Hospital.

As you can see, you'd be hard pressed to find a hotel that offers you more than us.

For instance all our bedrooms are extremely large (so kids under 12 sharing their parents' room stay free). All our beds are double beds. Double rooms, double double beds. Each room features a bath and shower, a television and armchairs.

Our hotels also contain features most hotels wouldn't think of. Like room temperature controls. Ample free ice. Even an indoor swimming pool.

Restaurant

Room service

Coffee shop

And what goes for our bedrooms also goes for our conference areas. Whether you're six or six hundred we'll lay on the sort of facilities that you would expect from the world's most experienced conference organisers.

As well as catering for conferences we cater for appetites. We've an elegant restaurant, a coffee shop for those with less time. And a friendly bar.

Meeting facilities for all occasions

Page - I would be comed of the first

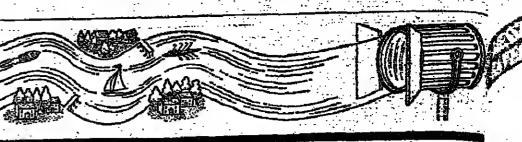

So at any hotel listed below you'll be sure of what you're getting. And so will we. Because at least four times a year our anonymous inspectors book in just to make sure.

Some people might think we put too much into our Inns. But we believe you can never have too much of a good thing.

For most people one of the prerequisites of a good country home is privacy. The distinction between privacy and isolation is not always easy to make, but apart from particular regions true isolation is seidom met. especially in the south of the country. On the other hand there are several factors that belp to give a sense of privacy, such as high garden walls, belts of trees, bedges and similar devices. There is another expedient, more rarely met with, which is perhaps more psychological than real these days, and that is a moat. Such properties are not easy to find. Moat Farm, at Burgh, near stairs there are a combined dining room and kitchen, two bedrooms and a bathroom. At the end of the main sitting room dining room and kitchen, two bedrooms and a bathroom. At the end of the main sitting room there is a staircase leading to a gallery, beyond which is a wide archway leading to a study or third bedroom. The garden is guite small, but there is an extensive range of outbuildings such as often went with these old schools. A price of £25,000 is being asked by King and Chasemore, of Pulborough, Sussex.

KHRUSHCHEV MEMOIRS____ More than enough crazy

people around to start World War III

Magazine, exclusive to The

In this time of scientific and cultural enlightenment, while the human mind soars to heights t has never reached before, man minultaneously expends more energy than ever before on perfecting the means of his own destruction. The world is divided into camps, each preparing to annihilate the otheroo between the opposing classes within individual societies, the world is rent by conflicts between states with different political systems.

Some people thought that World War II would be the war to end all wars because mankind would agree never to let such massive destruction happen again. But we've now reached the point where some people are talking about a World War. III. You can't just brush such a suggestion aside by saying, No, that's impossible now that there are nuclear weapons 2: World War III is possible. There are more than enough crazy people around who would like government doesn't want war; possible...

To those people who claim that the development of nuclear that the development of nuclear weapons precludes limited war. that is, it precludes war fought. with conventional weapons. Now there is the ever-present danger that big states will be drawn into a military conflict between smaller states; and once that matter what guarantees, assurances, and agreements may exist-it's hard to believe that a drowning man won't clutch at straws.

6 If it ever comes down to a question of whether or not to face defeat. there is sure to be someone who will be in favour of pushing the button, and the missiles will begin to fly. ?

in other words, now that the big countries have thermonuclear weapons at their disposal, they are sure to resort to those weapons if they begin to lose a war fought with conventional means. If it ever comes down to a question of wbether or not to face defeat, there is sure to be someone who will be in favour of pushing the button, and the missiles will begin to fly. Once one side, in desperation, starts using atomic and hydrogen bombs, a global disaster will be upon us. I once expressed this idea in a speech. and I recently heard a bourgeois journalist refer to my speech over the radio.

The United States has been

The United States has been our potential enemy; certainly it has been our most powerful and our most dangerous adversary. If we had given the West a chance, war would have been declared while Dulles was still alive. But we were the first to launch rockets into space, and we exploded the most powerful nuclear devices. We performed those feats first, ahead of the United States, Britain, and France—which are the principal performers in the orchestra of international politics, with the Americans calling the tune for their allies. Our scientific accomplishments and our obvious military might had a sobering effect on aggressive obvious military might had a sobering effect on aggressive forces in the United States, Britain, France, and, of course, in the Bonn government. It's no small thing that we have lived to see the day when the Soviet Union is considered, in terms of its economic and military might, one of the two most powerful countries in the world.

I remember President Ken-nedy once stated in a speech or at a press conference that the United States had the nuclear missile capacity to wipe out the Soviet Union two times over, while the Sovier Union had enough atomic weapons to wipe out the United States only once. He added. "The United States is none the less obliged to respect the Soviet Union and to avoid When journalists asked me to comment on Kenstatement, I said, , "Yes, I know what Kennedy claims, and he's quite right. But I'm not complaining -as long as the President understands that even though he may be able to destroy us twice, we're still capable of wiping out the United States, even if it's only once. I'm grateful to the President for recognizing that much. We're satisfied to be able to finish off the United States first time around. Once is quite enough. What good does it do to annihilate a country twice? We're not a bloodthirsty neonle."

These remarks of mine drew some smiles from the newsmen. I can't express the same confidenca about subsequent Ameri-

Nixon. To my way of thinking, he's unpredictable. I'd even say unbalanced. I don't know what motivates him, other than his obvious ideological harred for Communism and everything progressive. The main issue now is for all the leaders of the world to recognize the war must be prevented because, if it breaks out in this day and age, it will bring disaster to the whole planet. Mao Tst-tung believes that a new war would weaken that capitalist countries and there-In addition to the struggle going fore lead to further revolutionary gains for the proletariat. That's ridiculous. War would do as much harm to the socialist countries as it would to anyona

> Despite what Mao says, social reform is an internal question, to be decided by the people of each country on their own. I'm speaking now about the class struggle, a long and difficult process which can't be resolved. at the conference table. The capitalists and the working class can't be reconciled in friendly

The struggle will end only then Marxism - Leninism triumphs everywhere and when the class enemy vanishes from the face of the earth. Both history and the future are on the side of the proletariat's ultimate people around who would like to start one. I know that our victory Gradually in some cases, suddenly in others, the political conditions in capitalist countries and when I was in the leader will change for the better; the ship, I did everything I could people will have the final say, to avoid war. But anything is een exploiters and exploited will dissolve.

We Communists must hasten that the development of nuclear this process by any meana at our weapons precludes war, I say disposal, excluding war. We must remember that while the capitalist powers are unlikely to risk a world war, they will never miss an opportunity to conduct sub-versive ideological policies against us. I consider that normal and legitimate. The capitalists use their ideological propaganda, and we use ours. We must never forget that our enemies are always working against us, always looking for a chance to exploit some oversight

> There's a battle going on in the world to decide who will prevail over whom: will the working class prevail, or the bourgeoisie? The working class is convinced that the bourgeoisie has exhausted itself and that its days are numbered, while the bonrgeoisle believes it can rule

Every right-chinking person can see clearly that the basic questions of ideology can be resolved only when one doctrine defeats the other. As long as the capitalists refuse to give an inch, as long as they swear to fight to the bitter end, how can we Communists, we Marxists-Leninists, even consider com-promises in the ideological field? There's no way. To speak of ideological compromise would be to betray our party's first principles—and to betray the heritage left us by Marx, Engels, and Lenin.

Engels, and Lenin.

It was with this conviction in mind that I allowed myself at one point to use the expression "we will bury the enemies of the Revolntion". I was referring, of course, to America. Enemy propagandists picked up this phrase and blew it all out of proportion: "Khrushchev says the Soviet people want to bury the people of the United States of America!" I said no such thing. Our enemies were purposely distorting a few words I'd, just let drop.

words I'd just let drop.

Later at press conferences I elaborated and clarified what I'd meant. We, the Soviet Union, weren't going to bury anyone; the proletariat of the United States would bury its enemy, the bourgeoisie of the United States. My statement referred to an internal question which every country will bave to decide for itself: namely, by what course and by what methods will the working class of a given country achieve its victory over the capitalists?

6 We still have a lot to learn from the capitalists. There are still many things we don't do as well as they do.?

The struggle, then, is a struggle going on within each country between its own proletariat and its own bourgeoiste. As I've said many times at press conferences and in speeches during the years when the direction of our policies depended largely on me, there can be no such thing as peaceful coexistence in the sphere of ideology and the class struggle, but there can and must be peaceful coexistence in the sphere of relations among states with differing political systems.

Peaceful coexistence has been the most reasonable strategy dur-ing the period of transition from capitalism to socialism—in other words, the period in which we now live. Peaceful coexistence serves the interests of socialists and capitalists alike as well as the so-called intermediary peoples who recently freed thempeoples from colonial oppression.
I continually made speeches propagating the idea that we must live in cooperation and harmony with the capitalist world.

For one thing, we still have a lot to learn from the capitalists. There are many things we still don't do as well as they do. It's been more than fifty years since the working class of the Seviet Union carried out its Revolu-tion under the leadership of tha Presidents — especially great Lenin, yet, to my great dis-on. To my way of thinking, appointment and irritation, we still haven't been able to catch up with the capitalists. Sometimes we jokingly say that capitalism is rotten to the cnre. Yet those "rotten" capitalists keep coming up with things which make our jaws drop in surprise. I would dearly love to surprise them with any surprise them with our achievements as often. Particularly in the field of technology and organization, "rotten" capitalism bas borne some fruits which we would do well to transplant into our own socialist soil.

> Vladimir Ilyich Lenin himself established the doctrine of peaceful coexistence among states. Wasn't it Lenin who said that there should be mutual contacts and mutual exchanges of opinions between the Soviet Union and the capitalist countries? Wasn't it Lenin who said that revolution is not for export? Therefore, just as we oppose the export of counter revolution, we also oppose the export of revolution. We should adhere to Lenin's guidance and leave the business of overthrow-ing capitalism to the people of each country. We should make non-interference obligatory.

> If the big powers interfere in the affairs of smaller countries, the possibility of all-out war—hence the danger of total destruction—will be many times increased. We've been peacefully coexisting with the big capitalist erous local conflicts bave broken out around the world but bave not spread into global war because the major powers bave stayed out—with the exception, I hasten to add, of the American ilitarists who have behaved like gangsters disguised as gendarmes in Vietnam.

Now, rather than talking about war, we should be talking about these anti-aircraft guns with disarmament. Our military ob-more sophisticated weapons. jectives have always been defensive. That was true even under Stalin. I never once heard Stalin say anything about pre-paring to commit aggression against another country. His biggest concern was putting up anti-aircraft installations around Moscow in case our country under attack from the designer Sergei Paylovich Korolyov, we bave developed ICBMs that represent an effective deterrent against any aggressive moves our enemies might be tempted to make. What if our foes did launch a missile strike against us? In addition to being able to strike back, would we also be able to shoot down their missiles before they landed on us? Theoreticspeeches that we had developed anti-missile missile that accuracy and total reliability; even if you knock down most of them, a few are bound to get through.

President Johnson restrained

himself from trying to develop an ABM system; but when Nixon came into the White House, bc announced that the United States was going to build up its ABMs. That, of course, encouraged the Soviet Union 10 couraged the Soviet Union to speed up its own programme, lest our country fall behind the United States. The step-up in our programme has in turn goaded the Americans into stepping up theirs. And so it goes on. It's a vicious circle. There's no end in sight.

The case of the ABMs is a perfect example of how idiotic the arms race is. The spiral of competition is an unending competition is an unending waste of human intellectual and maierial resources, and it in-creases the chances of a military catastrophe—a World War III. Once again, I can't help comparing Nixon to Eisenhower, with whom I exchanged experiences about the way our military men Nixon to Eisenhower, with were always putting pressure on the government to give them entists, such as our brilliant money for new weapons. Nature funds which could otherwise b ally, the updating of defences is necessary, but it can go to absurd extremes.

We must keep in mind that military competition is profit-able for the circles of monopolistic capital in the West, while it's economically damaging for the socialist world. We must never forget the true character of all imperialists, monopolists, and militarists, who are interesally, of course, science provides ted in making money out of the us with the means to do so. I political tension between used to say sometimes in my nations. If we try to compete with the West in any but the most crucial areas of military could hit a fly, but of course that was just repetoric to make our adversaries think twice. In fact, it's impossible to intercept incoming ICBMs with pinpoint accuracy and total reliability. try's arms budget spent on the cultural and material needs of our peoples. We must not let ourselves be caught in that trap. We must remember that the defence industry is a nonproductive sector of our economy. It doesn't satisfy the needs of our people. Military expenditures are a bottomless pit, into which the imperialist camp would like to see us pour our economic potential. We must not give in to the provocations which our enemies will commit against us; we must not let ourselves be provoked into producing unnecessary weapons.

> • The case of the ABMs is a perfect example of how idiotic the arms race is. The spiral of competition is an unending waste of human, intellectual and material resources, and it increases the chances of a military catastrophe 9

The reactionary forces in the West know it's expedient for them to force us to exhaust our economic resources in a huge military budger, thus diverting much spent on defence.

However, we must remember that the advancement of science and technology can be like a whip, cracking over our heads. encouraging us to spend more and more moncy on national security. We can always build better rockets or better bombs tomorrow than the ones we have inday. But the goal of accumulating the very laiest weapons in sufficient quantity to be completely safe, once and for all—that goal is an illusion, a

We should be realistic and see that, at the instigation of Churchill even in his retirement, the Western powers forced the arms race on us during the Cold War. The arms race has been part of a calculated plan 10 binder the development of our economy, impede the growth of our standard of living, sow the seeds of disarray and dissatisfaction — and, if possible, bring about the collapse of socialism and a restoration of capitalism in our country.

"TWA's INFORMAL EFFICIENCY IS EXACTLY WHAT I EXPECT FROM AN AIRLINE."

John Manning is a member of Lloyd's, and Director of the City brokers H.Clarkson (International) Limited

We usually fly him twice a year to the United States for a pretty extensive business trip.

We get Mr. Manning's business because we have more to offer him than any other airline.

He can fly TWA across the Atlantic, and between 35 US cities. So his travel plans can be coordinated.

Connecting in New York's Kennedy Airport, for example, becomes much easier."You know everything is TWA in the TWA terminal," as Mr. Manning puts it.

"So I don't have to go on an interterminal shuttle. I don't have to introduce myself to a new set of airline people. I just walk off one TWA plane and onto another."

Apart from TWA's facilities. Mr. Manning also appreciates TWA's people.

"If you have a modern outlook," he says, "and you'd better have a modern outlook if you're going to do business in America, TWA's informal efficiency is exactly what you expect from an airline."

He likes what he's served with too. "A choice of food and a wide choice of drinks are nice things to have on a long flight."

> TWA's Ambassador Service is designed to appeal to experienced travellers like John Manning.

It does this by giving better value for money and by making sure that all the individual little aspects of travel fit together happily.

If you haven't tried TWA, you really should.

Your travel agent or TWA will fix it up.

And we'll do our utmost to make sure you want to fly us regularly, like John Manning.

Shared schools could breach Ulster's religious barriers

Mr Basil McIvor : compromise.

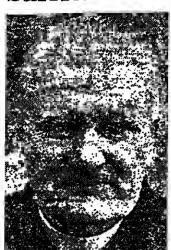

Two small but nonetheless significant events have occurred in the past couple of days to lighten the darkness which was heginning to ohscure the Northern Ireland Executive's audacious little plan for integrated schools.

On the one hand the Minister of Education, a quiet and academic Protestant called Basil McIvor, outlined tha ideas behind his suggestion of " shared " nursery schools—run by both churches—nointing out, for example, that children would not have to be educated together on a strictly proportionate hasis. On the other, Canon Padraig Murphy, the Falls Road priest who argued against the scheme so against the scheme so vehemently on television, made a revealing comment in one of the local nawspapers. "Some-thing on the lines of shared schools under the proper condi-tions of religious equality", he said, "could he a very exciting possibility".

None of this may bring inte-grated education in Ulster much nearer to reality, but devotees of Irish political science will notice the very first signs of movement towards compromise. Mr McIvor has acknowledged that if the shared schools system is to work it is only natural to expect those in mainly Protestant or Roman Catholic areas to be composed mainly of children from the dominant religious communities there. Canon Murphy, a robust, grey-baired man who has never failed on ecclesiastical ground hut he-cause he feels Protestants have not been as deeply committed to their heliefs as Catholics. The Protestant religions, under his theory has suffered herause the theory, has suffered hecause the Protestant church handed over the responsibility of religious instruction in schools to the state whereas the Catholics did state whereas the Catholics did not. The arguments going on just now, however, are on an infinitely largar and hraver scale than in the past.

A little more than a year ago, for instance, a report hy the advisory council for education in Northern Ireland said that "it would be unrealistic to expect the introduction of integrated schools in the near future". The document, which was examining the reorganization of secondary education in Ulster, then con-tinued to suggest "further pro-gress . . . towards a reduction of barriers". In a manner which gress . . . towards a reduction of barriers ". In a manner which might even he described as pussifications, leavers' conferences and seaside holidays seemed to he the best that the advisory council could offer for teachers who wanted to prevent the bitter sections.

Canon Murphy: "exciting".

asked parents own views and one suspects he means Catholic parents in parnicular, since the Protestant Church is making no real objections to integration. Some teachers too feel that the Catholic Church could find itself on the losing side if it does not take note of its own flock. A headmaster in co Armagh whn admin-isters one of the five per cent of mixed schools in the province, put it this blundy: "If the Church insists on this conflict, then a lot of Catholic parents could well decide on their own

Some Catholic parents already seem set—albeit against their will—on this very same journey. In North Down just now a group of them under the name of All Children Together are trying to find ways of providing religious education for their children out-side the Catholic school system. Their efforts have incurred what amounts to a prohibition from the Bishop of Down and Connor; if their children do not receive their religious education at Catholic schools and remain instead at state ones then those children will not be confirmed The leader of the parents' group, Mrs Cecilia Linehan, points out rather archly that the withholding of the sacrament could, of course, he regarded as a post-ponement, a reply which parents in other areas seem to have received from the Church when their sons and dampheers have

Mrs Linehan's telephone has heen ringing constantly sioce haired man who has never failed to condemn violence from any side in Ireland, seems to have accepted that there may not he too great an ecclesiastical objection in principle, to children of different religions sitting down together in the same classroom.

It is only fair to add that Canon Murphy still opposes integrated education, not only on ecclesiastical ground but he said the other day that the system would not work in working-class areas but what does he know about the working-attended state schools.

Not all parents are as forth-right as this. They do not wish to undertake an unwanted and perhaps unnecessary confron-tation with the church, especi-ally if they are happy with their children's education. The surveys and the discussions could go on—as they are inevitably accustomed to do in Ulster, into an apparent eternity, hut the Executiva at Stormont Mr McIvor, of course, has not just been relying on the Churches to create discussion in the past week. He has the end by the demonstrable will of the Catholic peopla whom both have to serve.

Bernard Levin

Say what you like as long as we agree with it if you come across an organization called something like "The Society for Spreading Liherty, Happiness, Brotherhood and Free Chocolate-Coated Digestive Biscuits Throughout the World", closer examination will almost certainly reveal that what its members, or at any rare organizers. members, or at any rate organizers, believe in is the suppression—if necessary (or even preferably) by violence—of all those whose tastes in violence—of all those whose tastes in liberty, hanpiness, brotherhood and chocolate-coated digestive hiscuits differ from their own. The moment a body sprang into being called the Council for Academic Freedom and Democracy, I chalked "Duggie Never Owes" on my hat and went about offering odds-on of 11-2 that what it would turn our to be in practice was would turn out to he in practice was a Council for Ensuring that Various Kinds of Marxist Totalitarians Should Get an Uninterrupted Hearing and that Nobody Else Should Get Any Kind of Hearing at All If It Could Possibly he Helped. The punters rolled up, and I am happy to report that my satchel is full and my ruby ne-pin glows more brightly than

The latest escapade of this sorry crew is connected with the policy recently promulgated by tha National Union of Students, the members of which will from now on be tormally encouraged (though it must he said that many of them have for some time shown every sign of generating their own encouragement in this regard) to prevent, or to break up, meetings at universities if political views which the leaders of the National Union of Students find unacceptable are, or may he, expressed, or if some person who has likewise incurred their dis-pleasure is to speak. The policy, I may say, has, since its promulgation, been defended by the President of the National Union of Students, Mr John

Rannall, with such torrents of odious humbug, such floods of transparent disingenuousness, such cascades of cringing, crooked, craven, creepy-crawly cant, as makes me almost despair for a country in which a decent boy can be steeped in the hogwash of his elders to the point at which his brain apparently turns into a kind of Stalinoid sonp.

Mr Randall and his gang will not, it seems, be irresponsible or capricious in exercising their policy of suppression. No indeed; why, they will generously—indulgently, eventolerate even the most eccentric views or the most deplorable people, provided, of course, that they are not expected to go so far as to allow a hearing to people or opinions which disturb their ignorance, complacency or prejudices from the right. You never know, they argue, where rightwing views may lead; to totalitarianism, for instance, against which it behoves us to all to be on our guard.

Stop there and contemplate not the attitude, but what the attitude reveals. Nowhere has Mr Randall, let alone those behind him dealt with the fact that well over half the people in the world live under regimes of left-wing totalitarianism, and that many of these (onlike the far smaller group of right-wing totalitarian states) incessantly proclaim their intention of subjecting the test of the world. of subjecting the test of the world to the same tyranny, and take every opportunity of furthering this intention. At an age which should be synonymoos with courage, Mr Randall is such an egregious poltroon that he runs away, mewling and nuking, from this uncomfortable fact into hlether about "racialism" (as if, incidentally, soma of the vilest racialism in the world did not come from the left-wing tyrannies). Provided Mr Enoch Powell, say, or the lunatic fringes of the Monday Club, or the National Front, are prevented from putting their views, and provided Professors Jensen or Shockley, say, are banned from presenting their conclusions, and provided Professor Eysenck is forcibly refused a hearing for his evidence, then democracy stands secure provided of course, you define democracy as left-wing totalitarianism. Once again, I am reminded of Orwell's famous and unanswerable dictum: the trouble with the left in this country is that ever since 1933 it has wanted to be antifascist without being anti-totalizarian. since 1933 it has wanted to be anti-fascist withour being anti-totalinarian.

And note that Orwell, even in his worst visions of 1984 could never for a moment have dreamed that his words would have to ha addressed to the young. Nor, I imagine, did the young. Shakespeare:

O: withered is the garland of the war; The soldier's pole is fall'n; young boys and girls Are level now with men; the odds

But what men they are now level with! With such as Mr Ralph Miliband, for instance, Professor of Politics at Leeds University, who believes that "revolutionary necessity in moments of great and urgent crisis may have to be invoked for the curtailment of academic freedom." (go back for a moment to my first paragraph, and then tell me if you are surprised to learn that Professor Miliband is one of the leading lights in the Council for Academic Freedom and Democracy), and who nobly rejects the view that "freedoms are bourgeois nonsense", but finds himself in a "dilemma", because "We", (we l) "are trying to integrate freedoms within a socialist framework", and who says that a "general disposition towards friedom of speech does not mean allowing anyone to speak on anything"; or with Mr Roy Edgley, Professor of Philosophy at Sussex University (by Plate and Aristotle, Professors of Philosophy are not what they were when I sat at the feet of Sir Karl Popper), and no fewer than 16 of his academic colleagues, who publicly defended the prevention by mob violence last year of a lecture there by Professor Samuel Huntington, of Harvard, hecause he did not entirely share the view of the Viemam war prevailing among the mob; or with Professor Steven Rose, of the Open University, who urges members of the Council for Academic Evsedom and Democracy to "do all in their power" to prevent the expression at universities of views with which ha disagrees, such as "fascist and racist" ones (but not of course, "communist and racist" ones).

It may be argued that with such

Well, there is not very much that the rest of us can do, but there is not quite nothing. In the course of an excellent article in the New Statesman, Mr Alan Watkins, that paper's political correspondent, has proposed that, while the National Union of Students goes storm-trooping about the country's universities suppressing the freedom of speech of those who do not express sufficiently gleich-

Understanding economic facts of human bondage

Was slavery really as bad as all that? That is the question that seems to he asked hy a new and controversial hook, Time on the Cross hook, Time on the Cross, which has just been published in the United States. It sets our to shake many long-standing assumptions about peculiar institution? America,

The two authors, Professor Robert Fogel and Professor Stanley Engerman, do not just claim that slavery was an efficient and flourishing system right up to the beginning of the American Civil War in 1861. They add that the slaves were very much better treated than has been generally believed, and that in some ways things got worse for them after eman-The material (not psycho-

"Slaves were exploited in that part of the income which they produced was expropriated by their owners. However, the rate of expropriation was much lower than has generally been presumed. Over the course of his lifetime, the typical slave field hand received about 90 per cent of the income he produced."

The authors attack the notion that the average black slave was lazy, inept and unproductive. "On the average", they write, "he was unproductive. harder working and mote efficient than his white counterpart".

The hook has already caused a stir in the United States, as well it might. It challenges many of the most widely held interpreta tions of slavery, including the views that it was an inefficient, declining system and that it had a completely demoralizing effact on the slaves and prevented them from being successful once they had been freed. Its strength is that it is based on some of the most thorough research that has ever been done into slavery. Professor Fogel and Professor Engerman belong to the school known as "econometric historians" or "cliometricians ". They have been accused of making themselves apologists for slavery. "The jolly institu-tion" is the headline of one review. But they deny this strongly, and some of the strongest passages in their hook are attacks on racialist attitudes. which were held, they consider, as much by the abolitionists as by the defenders of slavery.

"We have attacked the traditional interpretation of the economics of slavery, they write, "not in order to resurrect a defunct system, but in order to correct the perversion of the history of blacks—in order to strike down the view that black Americans were without culture, without achievement, and with-out development for the first 250 years on American soil.".

This view, they argue, is itself the product of racialism. It ignores the fact that blacks were not just used for menial labour under slavery.

Diet and health deteriorated, hlacks were squeezed out of crafts, and the gap between black and white incomes widened.

The authors are well awara of the shortcomings of their method, and the fact that it only deals with averages, not with particular cases of hardship and brutality. But they argue that until now too much reliance has been placed on such individual cases and not enough on the general outlines of slavery.

It was not in the interest of the slaveholders to mistreat their slaves, valuable property as they were. The evidence shows that in general slaves wera well fed reasonably housed well looked after when they were ill, and offered material incentives to work hard as well as being whipped when they misbehaved.

Why the Chinese place their trust in Dr Kissinger

The recent speculation about deterioration in Chinese-American relations, though largely allayed, helps to draw attention to the peculiarly intangible nature of the relationship that has developed.

The rush of sentiment in America which accompanied the first steps towards improv-ing relations with China re-flected a century-old belief that America has had and ought to have again some kind of special intimacy with this country.

In fact whatever goodwill the Americans might have cultivated before the collapse of the Kuomintang was lost in the two decades during which their country was seen as the main external threat to China. The Chinese attitude towards the United States is now firmly

The demonstrative cordiality and the setting up of the present liaison missions was years of tense hostility were ending, and partly a reflection of the real personal link built up between the Chinese leaders and Dr Henry Kissinger. However, as is reliably understood, there is a clear change in the nature of the exchanges which Dr Kissinger continues to have once or twice a year with the Chinese leaders. In the early stages they were con-cerned mainly with allaying fears and sorting out mismderstandings. It was necessary to convince the Chinese that the United States while not prepared to abandon its positiona in Asia overnight, represented no military threat to China. On the contrary, better relations with the Americans could help to protect China from the Soviet attack which she feared, although there is no suggestion of an understanding about military support.

Indo-China, Taiwan and
Korea are still the main contentious issues between China and the United States, and in each case the final outcome is clear enough: American withdrawal. er when they were ill, and material incentives and as well as being then they misbehaved.

Of course, trade has made record gains in the past two years and the first, hesitant and sometimes misguided steps have been made in cultural relations. But the real success giving both the Chinese and his own countrymen the chance to worry less about each other.

The Chinese leaders have ceased to regard Dr Kissinger as someone who can help to solve such problems as Indo-China and Taiwan, for they regard them as well on the way

While preserving an appre-ciative memory of Dr Kissinger's role in the negotiations which led to the so-called ceasefire in Vietnam, they no longer regard Viernam as a major topic of discussion with the United States.
The same applies to Taiwan.

The same appaies to larway. The American Air Force units stationed there for use in the Vietnam war are being gradually withdrawn, and that will leave only a negligible American william treasured on the can military presence on the island, which can be pulled on whenever the right political moment arrives. > position will be positively absurd if the Conservatives win and wish, reasonably enough, to return to the system embodied in the Social Security Act. It takes time to change any pension scheme and even longer before most changes bave a practical effect, so it is in everyone's interest to avoid constant alterations in national pensions in accordance with every shift in the political wind. That interest would have been better served by the Government confining themselves at this stage to those changes in the Act which any future administration should be prepared to accept. A better deal for women is an obvious example.

The second objection to the Government's decision is that it removes much of the pressure on occupational schemes to raise their standards. Mrs Castle told the Commons that she wanted "to make it plain that we are in favour of, and wish to encourage the development of, good occupational pension schemes which are highly valued by the people in them. It is not our purpose to place any obstacles in the path of such schemes". That

Now there is to he no state reserve scheme and therefore no conditions for exemption. Quite a number of occupational schemes have already changed their rules to meet those conditions, and these changes will no doubt stand, but many schemes heve not yet got round to this and they will no longer he forced to do so. This means, for example, that the dependants of a number of people who die in the next year or so, who would otherwise have been covered, will now he left without protection. The Government will still insist upon the preservation of occupational pension rights for those moving from one employer to another; but critical though this question is, these provisions were one of the least satisfactory parts of the Act. If nothing happens, if, so twist a famous phrase, we horrow enough whitewash from the White House, then we bad better not be surprised at a growing insensitivity to issues of moral and political principle io public life. Integrity cannot be maintained painlessly. Yours faithfully, N. JOHNSON, Professorial Fellow, Nuffield College.

From Mr John Peel Sir, In present circumstances, The Times leader of June 19, 1913, refer-riog, I think, to the Marconi scandal, is probably worth reprinting. Here is an extract from it:

s an extract from it:—

"A man is not hlamed for being splasbed with mud. He is commiserated. But if he has stepped into a puddle which he might easily heve avoided, we say that it is his own fault. If he protests that he did not know it was a puddle, we say that he ought to know better, but if he says that it was after all quite a clean puddle, then we judge him deficient in the sense of cleanliness. And the British public like their public men to have a very nice sense of cleanliness."

Yours faithfully, JOHN PEEL, 38 Barleycroft Road, Welwyn Garden City, Hartfordshire,

The press and libel From Sir Robert McEwen and Mr Philip Lewis

Sir, The arguments presented on May 4 as a correct statement of the law by Mr Henry Cecil (surprisingly, since in his more strictly legal role as Judge Leon he is a member of the Faulks Committee on Defama-tion) have never appealed to any tion) have never appealed to any court io this country, although admittedly they have never heen considered by the House of Lords, even et the instance of a journelist. Meanwhile, as the law was stated by Mr Justice Can-ley in 1968, a newspaper has oo general privilege of the kind suggested, unless it has a duty to communicate the matter to the public. (So, too, in Mr Cecil's comparison of the supposedly poisoning cook, any privilege would be supposed on a duty to require to be founded on a dut communicate.)

If a journalist could rely merely on his common interest with other citizens on public matters, he would, so long as he were honesr, retain his so long as he were robust, recan his privilege however ignorant, narea-sonable, gullible or prejudiced he might be. Arguments for the existence of such a privilege have heen rejected in the bighest courts in New Zealand and Canede.

We suggest that it is at least partly because Mr Cecil is wrong in law that lo England one cao have reasonable confidence in the truth of what one reads in the newspapers what one reads in the newspapers about individual public figures, who can and do sue if they wish to challenge the truth of what is said.

The papers beve, after all, a defence of fair comment, an important freedom strongly backed by the courts. To exercise this freedom successfully, they have to get their facts right. right. Yours faithfully,

ROBERT MCEVEN. PHILIP LEWIS. 2 Hare Court, Temple, EC4.

Prisoner in Greece

From Professor Sir Alfred Ayer and

Sir, Under the Athens Treaty of 1961, Greece is to accede to full membership of the Common Marker by 1984. We should like to urge Her Majesty's Government to oppose all measures that may further this end until a normal respect for individual rights and the rule of law in that country has been restored.

We write in particular with the fate in mind of Paul Georgiou, Pro-fessor of Mathematics in the University of Atheos, who was arrested on Janoary 22, deported to the island of Yaros and whose treatment, as well as that of his fellow-prisoners, is all too little known in England. According ing to reliable sources, no charges have been brought against Professor Georgiou and he bad not been in any way politically active during the six months between his leaving the Uni-versity of Tühingen, where he had beld another teaching post in mathematics, and his arrest. His offence appears to be that he refused to denouoce publicly students who asked him to joio in a political discussion instead of giving his normal lecture, a request which, characteristically, he declined. It is also possible that he refused to give to the ESA (military police), by whom he was interrogated after this incident, the names of the studeots who had tried to launch the discussion. Those who know Georgiou well testify to his general disinclination to be involved io active politics, as well as to a temperamental aversion, which may explain his present plight, to denunciations of any kind. It is our firm belief that a government which observes oractices of this kind has no place in a civilized community of oations and we trust that Her Majesty's Government will conduct its relations with Athens with 1.25e facts well in view. Yours siocerely,

A. J. AYER. ANATOLE BECK, HUGH THOMAS, E. C. ZEEMAN, May 2.

The example set by Mr Foot and the court

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

accused Sir John Donaldson of hav-ing been "rigger-happy". As Mr Foot saw fit to souse a judge who cannot defend himself perhaps a lawyer who had nothing whatever to do with the case may attempt to see

A judge swears on his appointment an oath to uphold the law without fear or favour. Sir John swore that oath. The law is the lew es laid down by Parliament. Parliament passed the Industrial Relations Act. It remains the law until Perliament repeals it. A company and some individuals obtained judgments against a union which regards itself as coore the law and neclined to pay.

Was Sir John to do nothing?
In fact, as Mr Foot well knows, Sir John at every stage gave the union opportunity after opportunity to avoid the inexorable consequences of defiance of the law. The union of defiance of the law. The union rejected every one, even against Mr Foor's own advice. Far from heing "trigger-happy" an impartial chserver would conclude that Sir John had shown patience heyond what the union's conduct invited, Had Sir John heen false to his ooth where would it end? Once judges stand by and watch the law detied by the strong with impunity then what protection under the law do any of us

This is a greve constitutional issue, and if Mr Foot will not wholly withdraw his criticism then I susgest that the Attorney-General must publicly repudiate him, with that courage and independence which is the proud independence which is the proud duty of his office.

If the Attorney-General does not do so, then we have his tacit consent to the Secretary of State, one of her Majesty's principal Ministers, advocatine that judges should adjust their administration of the law to the political views of the Government of the day. Sir Edward Coke, Chief Justice, fought that hattle at the risk of his oeck against Kiog James. Is the principle he won now to be surrendered?

I bave the honour to be Sir, your I bave the honour to be Sir, your obedient servent, RICHARD YORKE. Gray's Inn Chambers, Gray's inn, WCI. May 8.

From Mr A. T. Mefjat Sir, Mr Iao Gilmour, in a receot article in your columns, shows him-self to he completely out of touch with grass-roots opinion, in the Conservative Party and in the country, in regard to the trades unions.

The latest manifestedoo by Mr Scanlon's AUEW, of power without responsibility, is seen by the large majority of the British public. not as Mr Gilmour suggests, as a reaglying way to the unions bucontrary, as oecessitating an early renewal of the battle to bring them within the rule of law.

It is but a short step from the present use of industrial action against a Court of Law to industrial ection egainst the assumption of power by a democratically elected Government with whose politics they did not agree.

Clearly, if Mr Scanlon and his union are allowed to disrupt the economy by industrial action in order to demonstrate their dislike of and cootempt for a Court of Law, then we must expect similar action if, as is likely, a Conservative Government is returned at the next election. Such an action could only lead to the complete breakdown of our democratic way of life, as is clearly Mr Scanion's intention.

The unions are now making it painfully evident that they intend to govern—and that if they do not, no one else will. Such a challenge can not go unanswered. Yours faithfully,

A. T. MOFFAT. Devon Chambers. Union Street, Newton Abhot.

From Mr R. S. Harman Sir. In a recent radio interview Mr Rugb Scanlon, seeking to justify his union's use of industrial power to challenge the rule of law said that the trade union movement owed its present position to past defiance of the law.

His statement may he true, yet, is surely both misleading and dangerous; misleading in equating a law made hy a privileged minority with one enacted hy our present parliamentary democratic process; dangerous in its encouragement of that challenge to the economic and social order to which your leading article rightly calls our attention today. Yours faithfully.

Return to gold standard From Professor H. S. Ferns

Sir, It is a characteristic of monetary theorists, whether advocates of metallic standards, paper money or the more sophisticated management of the volume of currency and credit, to helieve that their particular prescription will solve ell problems. Mr C. C. Smith has done well to call our attention to the bistorical evidence of the insufficiency of monetary panaceas.

It does oot, bowever, follow that mooey is not a matter of con-sequence. Money is one of man's oldest social inventions, and one of the most important agencies of socia cooperation and interdependence. In order to fulfil its function as a meens of exchange, a measure of value and a store of purchasing power, the quantity of money io an economic system, or universally, must be controlled in some way or other. Money in its various forms is still serving its purpose as a means of exchange, but its utility as e standard of value and a store of purchasing power is diminishing. People more and more are turn-ing to hedges against inflation such as gold, silver, precious stones, works of art, land and forms of property having a long life of usefulness. Much social iojustice flows from the hreakdown of confidence in money. Those with large surpluses of purchasing power are able to make the switch from money to gold, land, etc, whereas those who have small incomes or small surpluses are not readily able to do so. Even more important than the social injustice involved in inflation is the effect upon investment and produc-tion. Stored purclassing power in the form of gold, works of art, land, etc, is idle and unproductive. The form of money does not metter as much as its quantity, and the only merit of gold is its relative immunity from the mismanagement of governments. Gold is becoming once more an informal standard of value and store of purchasing power because the control of the quantity of money by governments almost everywhere has broken down under the pressure of huge politically motivated expenditures. Yoors, etc. FERNS

From Mrs T. H. Graves Sir, Perhaps your correspondents on the gold standard would care to consider a different aspect of the matter.

Gold in the physical world has heen used over the centuries as an analogy for the unchanging ultimate power in the spiringal. Could it he our love of expediency rather than truth which has made us forsake the gold standerd? Yours faithfully, JENNY GRAVES 203 Stanley Road Twickenham, Middlesex.

Subsidies for the arts From Mr William Poeton

Sir, As an industrialist been closely concerned with the performing arts since the formation of the Arts Council, I would like to support those of your correspondents who advocate a steady and unim-peded increase in grants to the Arts Council, even in these times of trau-metic economic crisis. The salient feature of the Arts Council grant system from the point of view of husiness credibility is the way in which it actually receives and distributes its Treasury grant in direct proportion to the needs of its proportion. This is necessaries to the proportion of the needs of of the need organizations. This is in contrast to the normal Treasury system, both wasteful and inflationary, wherehy so many of our industrial and social institutions are forced to dispose of their hudgeted funds on the inflexible basis that moneys not spent caonot be carried forward from one accounting period to the oext.

Reform is long overdue. The Treasury should emulate in other spheres the grant aid method it employs for the Arts Council. This would dramatically improve the management of taxpayers' money, and in view of the megnitude of the Government's financial involvement in industry, nerhaps it would prove to be the economic miracle essentiel to our country's survival. Yours faithfully. WILLIAM POETON. Chairman

Everyman Theatre Co. Ltd. Cheltenham, President Bristol Arts Centre. Chalfont House, The Park, Cheltenham.

Medical education From Professor Charles Wells

Sir. May I select from the letter (April 20) from Dr Hunter, who is so well qualified to write on medical education, one particular suggestion: namely that students should have some kind of clinical work introduced into the carly stages (my italies) of the course". This would, as he says, bring informed apprecia-tion into their pre-clinical studies. It would also go some way towards satisfying the burning desire of every medical student to see something of medical practice and to bave actual personal contact with patients. Unfortunately, this latter objective is something that no sort of formal instruction can ever achieve. And oothing so inomate and personal will ever he provided at this stage of the course on a staff/student hasis for obvious reasons.

I have tried in many countries (unsuccessfully I fear) to persuede medical schools to allocate, from day one, each new student to a student in his clinical years. Some part of, say, a half day per week should then be allowed for them to be together when the more senior is interviewing patients and writing up his case reports. The senior would teach, the junior would learn and both would have the opportunity of sharing an invaluable experience. Perhaps some enterprising Dean will be tempted. Yours sincerely.

Limestone walls

From Air Vice-Marshal H. G. Leonard-Williams Sir. Dr R. D. Reid of Wells (May 6) got the wrong culprit when he attacked Somerset County Couocil for knocking down half a mile of stone wall et Burnt Wood (not Burnt House) in Somerset and replecing it with concrete posts and wire. The county council has nothing to do with that work. We build many lengths of stone walling io keeping with their surroundings in the course of a year. Wheo we have to use wood or concrete posts and wire fencing it is usually for a number of ioescanable reasons, including cost, owner's preference and the vital oeed st accident blackspots for motorists to see through the fence to the stretch of road beyond it.

Yours faithfully.

Case for keeping the CIR

From Projessor B. C. Roberts

Sir, I have yet to meet aryone even Sir, I have yet to meet anyone even within the trade unions, or Labour Party, who cao give me a good reason for closing down the Commission for Industrial Relations. This decision seems to he hased upon little more than political animus against the Commissioners for carrying out their duties under the Industrial Relations. Act. It is e decision, as Eric Wigham points out in his article todey (May 7). out in his article todey (May 7), which is surely contrary to the long term interest of the whole nation in a stable and effective system of industrial value long. industrial relations.

The Secretary of State will, I bope, forgive me for reminding him of Aneurin Bevan's warning to the Lahour Party of the danger of making major decisions based upon an "emotional spesm". To dismantle an organization which has discharged its function exactly as envisaged by the Donovan Commission and by the Labour Government. which set it up, with considerable success, would seem to require stronger instification than has so far been given.

The establishment of an independent Conciliation and Arbitration Service, which Michael Shanks and I first advocated as a cesirable development in a hook published 12 development in a hook published 12 years ago. is not an alternative to the CIR. The roles of these two organizations ought to be kept quite separate. Ooe has the function of assisting with the development of better long term procedural arrangements, the other will he mainly concerned with short term conflicts over substantive leaves. Fusing these roles substantive issues. Fusing these roles together may limit the effectiveness of hoth organizations.

As Eric Wigham poiots out, a consequence of this unfortunate decision will be to destroy the experience of the past five years and to scatter a knowledgable and dedicated staff whose expertise should not be wilfully squenoiered. I feel sure that if the Secretary of State were to change his decision to abolish the CIR it would receive widespread support from all sec-tions of industry. Yours faithfully,

B. C. ROBERTS, Professor of Industrial Relations, London School of Economics and Political Science. Houghton Street, WC2.

The Tate collection

From Sir John Racherstein Sir, I should he obliged if you would allow me a hrief comment on e state ment in Mr Overy's friendly review of my Modern. Fallow in a myour issue of May 2, namely that my "enthusiasm for English art at the expense of much of the most import ant Europeen work was reflected in the purchases made under [my] directorship [of the Tate]. If "ecquisitions" be substituted for "purchases"—the annual purchase grant heing £350 at the time of my appointment and for some years afterwards—the position is rather different from that which be snggests.

We acquired seven Picassos, including "Ferame Nue Assise" (which Picasso told me he considered his best cuhist painting) hesides nis best cunist painting) nesides scores of works by other European artists, to name, at random, Degas, Rodin, Renoir, Sisley, Cézanne, Lautrec, Vuillard, Rouault, Maillol, Munch, Lèger, Braque, Brancusi, Utrillo, Kandinsky, Klee, Ernst, Mondrian, Kokoschka, Gris, Chaeall, Manzu and Giacometti. Parlez vous Franglais?

From Mr William Pickles Sir, May I call attention to a point

Sir, May I call attention to a point that is certainly of interest to linguists and may also interest political scientists? With the rise of the popularity of foothall in France, the English word "score" became a common part of French sporting vocabulary. Soon after, it passed into the vocabulary of politics to describe what in English, until about a fortnight ago, was the "vore" or a formight ago, was the "vote" poll" of a political candidate. the pest formight, all the British correspondents in Paris, who take to the English half of franglais as ducks do to water (with many consequent failures of communication), written of the "scores" of French Presidential candidates, and your second leader today uses "scored" es a verh in the same context.

All this is an example of what Michel Breal, inventor of the study now widely known as "semenocs", called "loss of differentiation of meaning". Such losses are always regrettable. ("Hopefully", for hoffentlich, another recent invasioo which you too have embraced, is even more dangerously destructive of understanding.) But these things happen and when they can be caught on the wing they are worth recording. OED please note. Yours feithfully yesterday announced the acquisition of five portrait miniatures by Nicholas Hilliard from Lord Radnor.

portraits of Queen Elizaheth I and pictures of three unknown men and one unknown woman, all dating from abour 1585-90. The purchase has not only exhausted the museum's purchase grace for the current year—only six weeks old—but has put it in the red with a £16,210 advance on its 1975-76 grant. Dr Roy Strong, director of the museum since January, Victoria and Albert for five years. They were bought by the second Lord Radnor in 1796. Their condition is exceptional, because they have been kept in their original ivory hoxes with fitting lids since Elizabethan times. The purchase was negotiated through Christie's. The actual sale price has not been revealed but a special government grant of £32,420 was made which was supplemented from the museum's current moneys and an advance on next year's revenue. Dr Strong emphasized that he could not conceive how the museum was to "soldier through the next 11 months.

wih nothing in its coffers and the threat of new tax wih nothing in its coffers and the threat of new tax laws liable to flood the market with great works of art". With a purchasa grant of £139,000 the museum has succeeded in spending over £300,000 since Dr Strong took charge. Purchases have included the Lomellini ewer and dish, the Spencer House table, a Jacohean mermaid ewer and a mid-seventeenth century lacquered harpsichord, as well as the Radnor miniatures. They were all items of outstanding merk which had to be hought, Dr Strong said.

By Geraldine Norman Sale Ronm Correspondent A sale of silver at Sotheby's yesterday hrought hrought healthy bidding, with the main piece, an Augsburg tankard shaped as the bulging face of a bearded man, selling for £10,000 (L. Grinberg). The tankard dates from about £620 and is parcel-gilt; a few similar examples are known. A George II pierced oval cake basket brought a high price at £5,500 (T. Lumley). It has a coat of arms within a baroque cartouche in the centre of the base, dates from 1737, weighs £600 and is the work of Thomas Farren. The sale also included a rare Queen Anne Irish bot-milk jog in a squart circular design with flotted pauels. It was made in Dublin between 1704 and 1716 and weighs £600. The price was £2,800 (S. J. Phillips). A pair of William III table candlesticks (2902) made £3,800 (Spink) and a seventeenth-century Dutch tapering cylindrical beaker, elaborately engraved in commemoration of the Anglo-Dutch war of 1652-54, made £3,200 (S. J. Phillips). A set of four small George I candlesticks (380z) made the same price. The sale totalled £177.095

the same price. The sale totalied f.177,095.

Sotheby's Belgravia held a sale of pot-lids, Staffordshire figures and Goss wares which recorded only £7,832 but still brought some very high prices.

Gross wares especially the souvenir cottages, seem set for a collecting craze. Sotheby's have been selling Goss for only nine mouths. In successive sales a rare Goss hrickwork oven hronght £90, £110 and £230 (yesterday). Four items brought more than £200 yesterday.

Commemorative pottery was also in high demand, with prices roughly double expectations. A mug commemorating Queen Victoria's marriage brought £105.

At Christie's, fine English furmime made £90.876. The top prica was £6,825 (Phillips and Harris) for a Chinese coromandel lacquer traducter.

No cause has yet been found for spina bifida, the condition in which there is a fallure of normal development during pregnancy of the bones of the spine and the spinal chord and a bahy is horn with some degree of permanent paralysis of the lower half of the body. The theory that the condition might be due to the eating during pregnancy of potatoes affected by blight has heen largely discounted. There is, however, a reasonable chance that the number of affected babies may be reduced below the present figure of nearly 2,000 a year in the United Kingdom.

A test has been devised to detect the abnormality early enough in pregnancy for termination to be technically possible, and it seems likely that screening of pregnant women will eventually be a practical proposition. Two years ago research at Ediaburgh University showed that when a foeting develops with spina bifida, the fluid surroonding it in the nterus has an abnormally high level of recent meeting at the Ciba Founda-tion in London was told that when the test was done between the fifteenth and twentleth week of pregnancy it proved reliable in 10 out of 17 cases.

Commanting on that report, a leading article in the Lancet says there is still a long way to go. The technical aspects of the test need further refinement; the values to be expected in normal and abnormal pregnancies need to he determined by larger series of tests; and the optimum thming has still to be determined. Those studies are, however, going ahead fast so that there are grounds for cautious optimism that a practical solution may be in sight for one of the most distressing problems of pregnancy.

Washingtoo, May 9 Government officials, who have long been predicting a slowdown in the tempo of price rises this quarter, were vindi-cated today by the announce-ment of the smallest monthly rise in wholesale prices since last October. There was also a sbarp decline in wholesale food prices.

The Department of Labour said wholesale prices in April rose by 0.7 per cent, on a seasonally adjusted basis, after a rise of 1.3 per cent in March. Whilesale food prices fell for the second consecutive month, with a decline of 3 per cent (down 2.1 per cent in March), But this was offset by a 2.3 per cent increase in industrial wholesale prices, following a 2.9 per cent rise in the previous month.

The wholesale price index now at 1583 (1967 equals 100), is 18.8 per cent up on April of last year. Disquieting as the rise may be, the wholesale price figures for the last three months show an annual increase of just Lewis and by the Government Broker. Also on the Committee are Messrs W. Issues behind Britain's choice of reactor

From Mr R. W. Holder Sir, The discussion about which type of nuclear reactor should be chosen for the United King-Zenith Radio Corporation one of the largest radio and dom provides ample opportunities for experts to disagree, because there is no clear reason for selecting one system rather than another. If any one system were the obvious choice, there would not have been so much contention.

Perbaps the best view we can accept is that the light water reactor may be better suited for large power stations feeding a sophisticated grid in a concen-trated industrial country such as England: and a pressure tube reactor, such as the British steam generating heavy water reactor (SGHWR) or the Canadian Candu, is more suitable for less developed countries with wider recographical separation, as in geographical separation, as in Scotland. Mr Hawkins of the Central Elactricity Generating Board and Mr Tombs of the South of Scotland Electricity

Board may both be right. If they are there remain two major questions to he resolved, safety and exports. The Minister of State for Energy had made it quite clear that no system will be chosen which does not comply with adequare standards of safety and nohody dissents from that view.

As for exports, the economic strength of the oil producing states has taught us, if we did not appreciate ir before; that exporting energy is a source of exporting energy is a source of economic strength. By putting up the price of oil these same states have now made inevitable the switch to nuclear power which has so long heen predicted and so long delayed.

My company, as a consistent exporter of nuclear technology and with close relationships in developing countries, was authorized to follow enquiries for British pressure tube re-actors while the National Nuclear Corporation was sorting itself ont. We felt this to be useful hecause ultimately our power to help the developing world and to strengthen our world and to strengthen our economy will depend more on our ability to export reactors than on meeting our own domestic requirements.

Our inquiries show that there is an immediate demand for 11 British pressure tube reactors of 600 MWe, worth perhaps £1,000 in total, and the nnclear power reactors have become the cheapest source of electricity generated from power stations down to 100 MWe. While accepting the finding of the International Aromic Energy Agency that some 200 to 300 reactors in these sizes will be ordered in the next 10 years, we further find that, for commercial and technical reasons, pressure tube reactors are preferred in many of these applications.

The Candu system is in great demand, being the only pressure tune reactor at present on offer, and we are told that for the

From Mr John Hack Sir, I refer to the letter published in yesterday's issue (May 2) of The Times from Mr J. H. Carrick on the subject of " lnnch vouchers?

Ir would appear from the letter written by Mr Carrick that there is a nationwide misuse of luncheon vouchers. There are a number of companies who run their own private luncheon voucher schemes, and whatever arrangements they may make re-garding the use of these youchers should not be confused with the issue of vouchers by Luncheon Vouchers Limited the company which originated the scheme over 18 years ago.

A Luncheon Voucher is issued with the full backing of tha Inland Revenue and a tax concession allowed up to 15p per person per day. I feel that the ahuse your reader reports and his suggestion that these you chers are used for all manner of purposes, thus defeating the original purpose of issuing them to provide a bona fide meal, is almost completely untrue. There are approximately 400,000 employees receiving a Luncbeon Voucher issued by Luncheon Vouchers Limited every day. which are used for the original

It would be totally misleading for any of your readers to be to any way influenced by the incorrect statement made in Mr Carrick's letter. Finally, all restaurants accepting Luncheon Vouchars issued by this company know that they can be accepted for a bona fide meal

Thanks to e truly united effort from all our employees, to whom we owe so much for another year of satisfactory progress, our production during the emergency period did not suifer to the extent originally anticipated. As a result, the upward trend in both turnover and profits, so apparent throughout 1973, has forged ahead uninterrupted. Whether this continues for the remainder of the year will depend on the effect on industry generally of the policies of the new Government. Subject to these we look forward

Facing up to margin controls

Mothercare's preliminary figures caused some disappointment yesterday, with a 7p drop in the share price to 162p. But this probably reflected the appearance of an unduly optimistic broker's circular a few days in advance of the figures. For the pre-tax outcome of days in advance of the figures. For the pre-tax outcome of 16.5 m was not significantly below most long-standing estimates. Margin restraint was nne problem last year, and at the trading profit level margins were trimmed back from 17.8 to 17. There was also a marked thoudown in seles growth, from a rate of 27 per cent in the first to 17 per cent in the second balf. to 17 per cent in the second half. However, this covered the period of the three-day week when the group was facing considerable stock shortages.

At the pre-tax level profits have been flattered by £250,000 from property disposals, as well as a £300,000 rise in interest received. Stripping out the second half disposals leaves profits barely 6 per cent up for the period, boosted by improvements overseas.

For the current year the group would appear to be relatively well placed given its much vaunted cost control abilities and opportunities for further physical growth. But this looks already appreciated in a p/e

The fall in car registrations

The story at Automotive Products last year was one of alipping United Kingdom car registrations, made worse by the oil crisis, turning a 671 per cent jump in first-half pre-tax profits into a 51 per cent second-half fall, for a 151 per cent imbrovement ever the year. provement ever the year. Now AP expresses " cautious optimism. after an 8 per cent across-the-board price rise in February allowed enough profit in March just to offset unquaniffied losses in the first two months of 1974. The situation was not unexpected given the fall by a third in new car registrations in the first eight weeks of this year, due largely to the oil shortage and the three-day week.

What that has done to margins since the end of 1973, when they were virtually static, is anyone's guess. But if AP is is anyone's guess. But it Al' is talking in terms of further price increases being necessary by the middle of this year and barely six months after the February improvement, then cost inflation is clearly not slowing down.

However, if new car registra-tions are below the 1m mark this year, then AP can take some comfort from a large part of its original equipment busi-ness being concentrated on smaller economic cars. And though average milege this year will certainly be less than in recent years, AP's increasing replacement sales should be a stabilizing factor while commer-cial vehicles are holding up of its original equipment busi-

The Shell-Mex/BP formula for dividing by two

The division of Britain's largest and most powerful petrol and oil marketing organization— Shell-Mex and BP—into two in-dependent trading identities is entering its final but most difficult stage. Already much bas been done to split the joint United Kingdom marketing arm of the two largest British-based oil companies which was estab-lished in 1932.

All the 12,700 petrol retailing ourlets have been divided into the Shell or BP/National brands strictly in accordance with the 60/40 holdings in the company by the two parent organizations. The much larger industrial fuel market has been carved up on the same basis with Shell getting the lion's share.

Road tankers are now eppor-tioned on the same basis and painted in the distinctive liveries of the individual groups. But the companies still operate out of distribution depots serving both brands and these terminals are supplied by jointly owned railway wagons, pipelines and coastal tankers and barges. The splitting of this part of

The splitting of this part of the operation to serve the separate Shell and BP marketing operations is now occupying the minds of a high-powered operations executive at Shell-Mex and BP's headquarters in London's Strand. Their objections tive is to have two separate hut interdependenz distribution interdependent distribution organizations working by June of next year.

Toe division of the joint computer operations is also going ahead and no top of this Shellthe break-up of their United Kingdom marketing operations in 1971. Both would be wholly-owned subsidiaries of Shell Mex and BP but at this stage the parent companies could easily absorb production to marketing.

Apart from the rapid development of the North Sea, the other factor that has changed significantly since 1971, is the protected development. these separate United Kingdom marketing companies into their central operations. No decision has yet been taken on the ultimate fate of the 42-year-old joint trading group but it is generally acknowledged that its end is only a matter of time. significating since 1971, is the potential demand for oil products that the separate Shell and BP organizations will sell. But Mr H. B. Greeoborough, chief executive of Shell-Mex and BP, says that last winter's oil supply crisis and the effect Once the two sharebolding companies can he assured that the regrouping of the distribution side of the business is going to be success, then the path will be clear for a final parting of the ways. Shell and BB took the first street covered. this must have on the long-term demand for products, in no way alters the schedule for going to be success, then the Mr Greenhrough, who beaded path will be clear for a final the Oil Industry Emergency parting of the ways. Shell and committee that controlled BP took the first step towards Britain's oil refining and distribution industry during the supply crisis, admits that in certain nil product markets the separate companies cannot look to the extravagant growth rates of the past.

The Shell-Mex and BP group bas already seen a 2 per cent downturn in demand because the rapid escalation of oil prices has forced industry to reappraise its energy needs. "I believe we are going to see growth in the markets for petrochemical feedstocks and transportation fuels where there are oo viahle alternatives while little growth could be expected in demand for beavier oils", he ing of the distribution network —the energy crisis and soaring prices has been of positive benefit to the operations groups Planning the new-look network.

Before the price explosion last October calculations based on three dollar-a-barrel landed oil showed that the streaming of the distribution network could have an undesirable effect on overall costs, which ran completely in the face of the planners' main objective which was to achieve the new organization without adding significantly to operating costs.

But with oil at $10 a harrel and petrol retailing at over 55p a gallon, the extra one-tenth of a penny a gallon attributable to increased transportation and handling costs is more easily absorbed.

A complicated formula is being devised to distribute the depots owned by Shell-Mex and BP so that both the separated hrands can contioue to offer the same delivery service to their customers. This is of prime importance since, in the indus-trial market particularly, reliability of supplies is almost as vital as price. Four of the largest terminals will continue to be shared so thet independent operations oo the sites can be developed for each hrand if required in the future. Where possible, iodividual hrands have oeen given exclusive rights to terminals but in many cases this is not possible and the designated owner and In one direction—the streamoperator of the terminal bas to provide storage and handling acilities for the tanker fleets of bis "guest".

One of the final operations will be the apportionment of the large industrial contracts. Power station supplies play such e large part in the industrial fuel market that the whole hrand streamion system has to have built-in methods of fine adjustment so thet the 60/40 split can be achieved accurately.

In the petrol market this has already been undertaken once with the transfer of over 1,000 National stations to the Shell brand. The same thing will un-brand. The same thing will undoubtedly take place in the industrial market hefore Shell-Mex and BP disappears forever.

Kenneth Owen examines the problems of energy storage

Building electricity banks

You can store oil in tanks; you can store gas in gasholders: but you cannot store electricity in anything—not economically, universally and in large quantities, that is. For the future it would be highly desirable if we could do this; what are the lines of technology most likely to suc-

This, in essence, was one of the subjects raised and discussed earlier this week at the international conference on "Energy, Europe and the 1980s" held in London by tha Institution of Electrical Engineers, Possibilities for the future were described by speakers from the Control Electricity Generate. the Central Electricity Generating Board and from the Battelle Research Centre, Geneva.

Although the phrase "energy crisis" is generally taken to mean the problem of ensuring sufficient energy resources to meet the increasing overall demand there is a secondary but important problem. This is matching the electricity supply to a demand which fluctuates according to the time of day and the season of the year.

Consumption of electrical energy within the European Community is expected to quadruple from 1970 to 1990. Conit is estimated, will grow sixfold over the same period, increasing from 40 per cent to 60 per cent of the total.

Since it is this sector which is Since it is this sector which is largely responsible for the peak power demand—at breakfast time, in the early evening, and at tha end of the "Miss World" contest nn television, according to the CEGB—the problem of matching supply and demand will get worse will get worse

At present the general pattern is to use the most economical power stations to meet the base le ', bringing in older thermal plant, pumped hydroelectric storage and gas turbine units for tributing 40 per cent.

Pumped bydroelectricity is the only significant storage system available at present. Electricity generated during quiet periods is used to pump water into an upper reservoir, from which the water is released at peak periods to drive hydroelectric surhipse. to drive hydroelectric turbines.

Ideally, a storage device would be located near the peakpower consumers, to redoce transmission losses (which take ahout 7 per cent of total electricity generated at present). Again, in the ideal case it would store the energy as electricity, to reduce conversion and reconversion losses, but more usually the stored energy is in thermal, mechanical or chemical form, Electrical energy storage is possible but impracticable at present. This coold be done magnetically, using superconducting coils in which, at very low temperatures, electric cur-rent would circuleta with oo resistance losses. The specific capital cost of such a scheme would decrease as the size of the machine in-creased, but would epproach a reasonable figure nnly at sizes arded as too large for practi cal use.

Energy storage in a strong electric field, ie, in a capacitor, is also possible. It would demand materials of high dielectric strength, storage life would be small, and the release of eoergy would he difficult to control in large installations.

Thermal storage in the form of off-peak electric ceotral hearing using storage radiators is in widespread use. It has been responsible for a significant improvement in the daily load factor, Dr A. B. Hart and Dr J. K. Wright of the CEGB reported at the conference. But the end-product is beat, not electricity.

Proposals to use high-temperature heat reservoirs (such as fluidized sand beds) in which the stored beat would be used alternators are being investi-gated at present. Capital costs should he comparable to those of conventional fossil-fueled plant.

Mechanical energy methods include gravity (ie, the pumped bydroelectric storage mentioned earlier), pressure, and rotation. Pressure storage bas been proposed as e means of increasing the fuel efficiency of gas turbines. Air compressed during off-peak periods and stored in underground caverns could in-crease the electrical output of a gas turbine by a factor of two or three on the same quantity of fossil fuel.

Dr K. D. Beccu, of Battelle, told the conference that the Swedish State Power Board was exploring a scheme which would store some 240MW as com-pressed air in a network of two-nels blasted out of granite, and special gas turbines for this purpose were being developed.

The kinetic energy of a rotating flywheel can also be used to provide storage. Steel flywheels could meet the CEGB's spinning bigh-strength composite materials bave greater potential.

A flywbeel system would, for safaty reasons, have to be boused in a sealed enclosure and coupled discounter that the system was a sealed enclosure and coupled the system was a sealed enclosure and coupled the system. directly to a generator-motor. It would operate in an atmosphere of inert gas of low pressure in order to reduce air-friction reserve, but modero lightweight.

A 12-15ft diameter flywbeel weighing 100-200 tons and rotating at 3,500 rpm. Dr Beccu said, would store 10-20 megawatt-hours at full charge.

Safety problems with fly-wheels could be severe. Dr Hart and Dr Wright mention that the and Dr wright mention that the sudden disruption of a 1,000-MWh flywheel would give an explosion equivalent to 860 tons of high explosive. Various types of electro-chemical (battery) storage de-vices are available and under development. Large lead/acid batteries are widely used at power stations for emergency use, but their capital cost is too high to be atceptable for stor-which is being developed for traction use, could he adapted for large scale electrical power storage. But, the CEGB authors suggest, the less developed lithium/chloride battery might be more suitable. Problems of materials, corrosion and manufacturing technology remain.

Work at Battelle's Geoeva research centre on a "dissolved redox system" (redox is an abbreviation for exidation-reduction) showed great promise, Dr Beccu reported. This relies on the reversible oxida-tion and reduction of ions dissolved in an aqueous electrolyte.

The energy storage occurs by pumping the discharged solu-tion through an electrolyte cell, and by storing the "charged" solution in separate tanks. Such systems, the Barrelle scientist coocluded, would per-form well and would be economically competitive with present alternative methods. A considerable research and development effort remained to be accomhigh to be acceptable for stor-age use.

The sodium/sulpbur battery, high to be acceptable for stor-oess to follow could amount to thousands of millions of dollars.

The John Lewis Partnership

Results for the year ended 26th January 1974

The Partnership's sales rose by £37 million to £209 million. Of that increase department stores contributed £20 million and Waitrose supermarkets £16 million.

Gross margin, as a percentage of sales, was appreciably lower than in the previous year both for Waitrose and for department stores. Throughout the year the Partnership exercised comprehensive restraint against potential increases in retail prices and offered its customers the lowest prices that in its judgment could safely and reasonably be borne.

Trading expenses rose sharply as did charges for interest and taxation so that the balance available for profit sharing and reserves increased only fractionally from $11,548,000$ in 1972/73 to $11,675,000$.

The whole of the Partnership's equity is held in trust for all those who work in the business (Partners). Profits, after interest and preference dividends and after providing proper reserves, are distributed among all Partners in proportion to their pay. For 1973 74 56, 447,000 was put to reserve and 53,733,000, 15 per cent of pay, was distributed as Partnership Bonus among 23,000 Partners.

Sales for the first ten weeks of 1974/75 are up by 15 per cent. Within this total department store sales are up by 7 per cent, and the Waitrose sales are up by 35 per cent. 1973/74

As anticipated, the results for 1973 show a significant improvement over the previous year. The profits achieved were the highest in the company's history. In general, most of our activities benefited from the growth in the national economy, which began in the second half of 1972, and which continued throughout the year. 1973 would have been an outstanding year, but for the difficulties encountered by the travel companies, costly industrial disputes, and the effects of newsprint shortage in the last quarter.

The development of the Piper Oilfield in the North Sea has been pursued with the utmost urgency and the target which has been set by the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, the operators for the Consortium, still aims to produce oil by early 1975. There have been and still are delays, but providing the strenuous efforts are sustained it is still possible that the original target will be achieved.

1974 is likely to prove a difficult year. In the medium and long term, however, there is much to sustain our confidence. We are widely based and strongly diversified; we are well spread in our activities, both here and overseas; and we can anticipate a significant benefit in the years ahead from our opportunities in North Sea oil. Though the immediate future is difficult, the future is bright, perhaps very bright.

COMPANY MEETING

Extracts from the Statement of the Chairman, Mr J. T. CHAPPEL C.B.E., F.I.M.M., circulated with the Report and Accounts for the year ended September 30, 1973.

The accounts for 1972.3 (equivalent to 9.4 pence on a how a profit before taxation, gross basis) leaving £95.624 to show a profit, before taxation, of £301,061, substantially lower than the record profit in 1971/2. Results reflect the predicted improvement during the second half of 1973, when heavy engineering at last began to receive the orders so notably lacking during the two-sear period of depression in the Australian economy.

We believe that there is much promise for the future in our Australian operations, and action has been taken to widen and strengthen them.

Substantial assets were acquired with effect from 1 January 1974 from the Hadfield—Goodwin-Scotts Group, for whom a Receiver had becoappointed, in order to give Vickers Australia an interest in the supply of equipment to the rail transportation and coal industries. This move quickly brought orders to Vickers Ruwolt for equipment to a value of over £3\; million. In addition, a new company has been established at Kalgoorie to service the many mining activities in Another promising development is the formation by Vickers Hoskins.

Another promising development is the formation by Vickers Russoft of a joint venture company in Indonesia to service the off-shore oil and gas production activities in Indonesia and adjacent waters. To this end a facility is being set up on the island of Batam. Vickers Russoft have been engaged in similar activities in the Bass Strak 1973 was a very good year for Vickers, however one measures it. Sales totalled £213 million, orders in hand at the end of the year stood at £378 million, compared with £304 million, profit before tax rose to £18.2 million (1972 £9.6 million), earnings per £1 of Ordinary Stock rose to 20.03p (1972 11.30p), and liquidity improved still further.

A revaluation of all the Group's properties by pro-fessional valuers estimated that at 30 September 1973 the values of our properties stood at just over £75 million which compared with net book values of some £19 million, gave rise to a surplus of some £56 million. At the same time the opportunity was taken to standardise the differing depreciation rates on plant and other equipment applied by the operating units throughout the Group. This resulted in a net reduction of some £2.6 million in book values, and this has been offset against the surplus on properties.

After allowing for deferred taxation, the proportion of the surplus due to minority shareholders and the cost of valuations, there was a oet surplus of approximately £39.6 million and this amount has been taken to reserves.

Howson-Algraphy

This business is now making a resion contribution to the Group's profits. The success of the husiness is built on first-class products allied with advanced manufacturing methods, vigotous our keting and comprehensive research. To ensure continued product leadership, the already powerful research and development team is to be further strengthened and a new research laboratory is further strengthened and a new research laboratory is under construction at a cost of some £500,000. Large additions to manufacturing capacity are being made both at Leeds and at the company's factory in Holland, with a new factory also being erected in Spain.

Howson-Algraphy will thus be well placed to meet the multiplying demands for lithographic plates, both in the U.K. and overseas, as printing methods increasingly move from rotary letterpress to web offset.

Engineering Group

The Group had a profit of £1.4 million, much the best figure from the Group in receot years. These figures are particularly pleasing since they reflect the major effort that has been made in recent years to sure ambitoe the Group and to discard those activities which could be dentified as lacking growth potential.

While this process will continue as necessary, we intend to strengthen those businesses for which a promising future can be foreseen. In earnest of this policy was the acquisition in November of Dawson & Barlos Manufacturing Limited, a company enjoying a high reputation in the design and manufacture of bottling machinery. With the addition of these facilities to those at Crayford and Brussels, Vickers becomes the largest U.K. producer of bottling machinery, and the enlarged husiness is now trading under the title Vickers-Dawson. A particularly significant feature of theoewacquisitioo the entree it gives into the dairy and soft drinks

The Board further decided that much improved facilities for these and other activities were necessary at Crayford where the existing factory is outmoded. A new factory is being built accordingly on an adjacent site at a cost of some £2 million.

Shipbuilding Group

The Shipbuilding Group performed less well in profit terms in 1973 than for several years past. This arose partly from the setbacks caused by a fire on one of the Brazilian submarines and by the Pisces submersible accident, and partly from the need to make provisions against losses anticipated on the Danish cruise liner and some other contracts.

Roneo Vickers Office Equipment Group Profits remained at the 1972 level, which must be accounted disappointing in relation to an increase in turnover to over £54 million. With the business in a period of reorganisation and expansion it is perhaps unreasonable to expect immediate high problability, but I believe that Roneo Vickers has excellent potential and that we shall see this increasingly realised in profit figures unless there is a serious down-turn in trading conditions.

In the meantime we are for tifying by acquisition and investment the basic strength of the Office Equipment Group, and as a further move to this end we acquired at the end of March 1974 the business of Fanfold Limited. This acquisition provides useful complementary products to those manufactured by Hirst Buel ley Limited, who and I think it will be generally agreed that we took a right strong. Inevitably, however, there will have been an impact on our 1974 profits. On present indications this is likely to be more in terms of a check to the further increase of profits expected in 1974 rather than a full-back from the 1973 level.

1f. therefore, the matter could reat there a note of modest optimism might be struck, but unfortunately other adverse factors are now apparent. Thus the Budget has loaded many extra burdens on industry; heavily increased prices from the nationalised industries, a sharp rise in National hisurance contributions by the employer, and increased Corporation Tax coupled with a demand for earlier payment. In all these circumstances it is difficult to offer any firm prediction for 1974, especially given current uncertaioties in labour relations. What I can say. however, is that Vickers is at this moment in good shape. We have strong order books, the rationalisation and reotganisation of recent years has greatly improved the efficiency of our operations, and we have committed outselves to significant expansion of selected activities by investment and acquisition. In short, we are strong in ourselves, and though we are being asked to carry heavier financial butdens, and to do this in an economic environment of some uncertainty, we are confident in our ability to maintain a high level of performance unless there is a major down-turn in the economy.

The meeting of the shareholders of the Banco di Roma, held under the Chairmanship of Avv. Vittorino Veronese, approved the balance sheet as at 31st December, 1973, the corresponding profit and loss account, and the distribution of the profits for the financial year.

The Chairman's report has drawn attention to the economic and financial events which were significant during 1973. In spite of the difficulties experienced, the results obtained by the Banco di Roma have been as follows :

 increase in assets in Ure and foreign currencies by about 1,358 thousand million lire, equivalent to 23%; -increase in lire and foreign currency loans by 713 thousand million lire, equivalent to 22%;

—increase of 3,050 thousand million lire, equivalent to 28% in the overall total of the accounts.

In 1973 the Bank's territorial expansion has continued and the operating network in Italy and abroad now covers 266 branche

The year bas witnessed the completion of the first stage in the programme for the creation abroad of new operational units, simultaneously with the strengthening of the existing structures, whilst also laying the basis for a new expansion programme. The report has dealt at length with the foreign sector, as well as with the Europartner concept. The co-operation agreement with the Commerzhank and the Credit Lyonnais has been extended with the entry into the group of the Banco Hispano Americano. Menrion is also made in the report of the development of affilisted foreign banks. Good results bave been obtained from the Bank's various participations and the Rominvest Fund has contimued to be successful. Taxes receivable for account of the government as at 31st December, amounted to 64 thousand million lire. After the usual precautionary appropriations and depreciations, the trading account closed with a net profit of 4,904,253,911 lire on the basis of which the meeting decided to allocste 1,500 million lire to reserves which therefore rise to 19 thousand million lire, equivalent to 47.5% of the capital, to distribute a dividend of 8.50% and to carry forward the remaining profit of

The meeting also approved the appointments of a new Board of Directors for the period 1974 '76. These were: Avv. Mario Barone, Avv. Fausto Calabria, Dr. Alberto Capanna, Dr. Danilo Civili, Dr. Ing. Fortunsto Federici, Avv. Giovanni Guidi, Prof. Dr. Vitantonio Pizzagalio, Capt. Antioco Ravano, Avv. Pictro Sette. Dr. Massimo Spada, Dr. Ugo Tabanelli, Prof. Ferdinando Ventriglia and Avv. FINANCIAL NEWS

Brake on Vickers' growth unlikely BANCO DI ROMA to depress earnings this year

By Our Financial Staff

On present indications, Lord Robens writes in the Vickers samual report, the effect of the three day week is likely to be more in terms of a check on the further increase in profits ex-pected in 1974 rather than a fall-back from the 1973 level.

The impact of a potentially disastrous situation, Lord Robens adds, had been greatly reduced by the spirit of enterprise and cooperation that bad been shown. The group's liquidity, for example, bad not been adversely affected to the degree that might have been expected and at the present time the liquidity position was strong.

- * The year started well but, as expected, the enforced increase in our cleaning charges to cover the introduction of VAT from 1st April affected intake from then on.
- * In August terms were agreed for the acquisition of Alphe Dry Cleaners which operate throughout South Wales.
- * Additional properties were released for rental during the year. All possible shop property developments continue to be explored and several projects are either already in hand or at the planning stage.
- * During the year the Group agreed to become the United Kingdom holders of the Apparelmaster licence. Apparelmaster is a system of garment rental trading. A promising start to this new project has elready been made.
- * Taking the long term view the Board are confident that the Group with its inherent strength will, after surviving the effects of the present national crisis, emerge poised ready for further progress.
- * At the annual general meeting Mr. Johnson stated that after a poor start in the early weeks of the current year business had substantially improved and the Group was now trading well on all fronts.

Banks cease bond trading

The troubles of the hard-pressed Eurobond secondary merket were newly underlined resterday when twn banks. First National Boston in London and Union de Banques Privées (Uni-banque) in Luxembourg, revealed they were ceasing to maka a market in Eurobonds. Neither bas been a big trader, but their reasons for quitting the market emphasize the gloom felt in some quarters about the future for Eurobonds.

The underlying problem for traders in recent months has been that short-term interest rates have risen well above longterm rates. This so-called inverse vield curve has meant thet any boods hald on the dealars' books for trading purposes have had to be financed at a loss.

First National Boston economists forecast that the inversa yield curve is likely in remain for some size and in order for some time yet, and, in order to cut loases, the deciaion has been taken to pull out of the secondary market completely. The bank had been trading in between 120 and 150 straight dollar bonds since last October. In the case of Unibanque, the board yesterday mode the hlunt statement that it considered the Eurohond market was "without a future". The decision to stop making a market took ioto account the evolution of interest foreign exchange markets.

The bank, which is owned by seven private benks mainly in Belgium, began trading in Eoro-bonds two and a half years ego and dealt mainly in straight dollar bonds and unit of account issues. A spokesman said the trading department was profit-able in the first half of its finencial year to the eod of September.

TCL earnings up sharply

Higher dividends from its substantial platinum and gold 7.84m shares in Union Platinum and 2.58m Harmnny shares—has helped Transvaal Consolidated Land to dooble its interim pretax profits to R6.03m. Further impetus came from the consolidation of Witbank Colliery and Welgedacht Exploration as con-trolled subsidiaries while dealing profits chipped in R603,000 compared with R646,000 for the preceding 12 momhs.

Interim earnings, theu, on tha slightly increased capital have risen from 36c to 61.7c a share and the expectation is that this satisfactory performance will he repeated in the current half with the exception of the dealing profits which were worth 8.3c.

So one is lnoking at a full year outturn of around 115c (71p) and a prospective p/e of 14 with the sbares et £10. The interim dividend has been raised from 13c to 20c and it is boped to pay a final of 35c where the

Group Lotus Car

While the success of the new Elita car will bear greatly on the future; Mr Colin Chapman, chair-man of Group Lotus Car Compan-ies, is confident, However, no forecast for the year is possible because of current economic conditions. Last year much of the company's main technical effort went into refining and tooling-up for the new car, and nearly all the development expenditure for it was incurred by car, and nearly all the development expenditure for it was incurred by January 6. Specialist tools and services relating to a new body process and costing £54,000 were purchased from a company wholly-owned by certain group directors. The company has arranged bank facilities to cover the higher working capital temporarily required for the introduction of new models.

Sales of existing models were kept up in the first quarter because adequate stocks were to hand by the end of 1973.

Active trading in the mark

The German mark tegistered fresh exchange finctuetions to European currency markets resterday. At ooe stoge it displayed antion against the dollar of 11.5 per coot, compared with its ootional central cate.

central cate. Houses met some calling, but oot enough to be troublesome, end rates that started around 113 per cent had come off to about 11 per cent by the eod of the morning. After lunch, money was heing offered in quite sizable amounts, which houses obtained at steadily declining rates. Books were balanced over the range of 9 to 10 per cent, and most discount houses escaped a late uotorn in rates in other markets—the interbank rate jumping to 13 per cent before turning back down to 10 or 11 per cent. Business was seen in "eligible" bills et varying rates. Buyers were noted at nrices from 13g to 13g per cent.

Factors in the market's favour included a fall in note circulation and the distribution of some of the fillom thet the Government set there was, it seems, some money this foreste on Wordnerder ceot, compared with its ootional central cate.

However, the German currency failed to hold its stroogest levels of the session, closing steady at 2.4195-4210 against the United States mit, compared with 2.4210-30 overnight. The mark han all-vanced to 2.4030-60 immediately efter mid-session, in heavy trading activity associated with speculation about some form of further Enropeen currency realignment.

The market was uosettled by the reported remarks of the chairman of the German Government's economic advising concil, Herr Norbert Kloten. He is alleged to bave said thet Germany could upvalue the mark, but a continuent on of the European joint float would be preferable.

The dollar was weak in most Continental centres for much of the day, notably egainst the Swiss franc and guilder (in eddition to the mark). As a consequence, some support was believed to have been given to the less strong currencies within the European joint floet. Late in the da'the dollar ra'ling, recovering most of its early losses.

Sterling rose a net 15 points, to close at $2.4315, after earlier tonching $2.4360 against the dollar. But the pound's effective devaluation rate widened marginally to 17.40 from 17.30 per cent.

$115m coffee price plan

At the two-dey coffee producers meeting in Puntarenes, Costa Rica, it was agreed to set up a $115m. (£43,750,000) fund to enable exporters to bold ont for higher prices instead of selling their coffee immediately, conference sources told Reuters.

Regal agreed to contribute $100m. toid Reuters.

Brazil agreed to contribute $100m to the fund, with the remaining amount being supplied by Colombis, Mexico, El Salvador and Costa amount being supplied by Colombis, Mexico, El Salvador and Costa Rica.

It was also decided by Costa Rica, Mexico, El Salvador and Guatemala to set up a marketing compaov called "Other Milds" with the purpose of stabilizing and improving prices for their coffee in the New York market, the sources said. Brazil and Colombia will help the company as technical and ecnoomic advisers, they added.

To London the Robusta termical moved higher at the opening yesterday following the very steady trend in New York overnight and the constructive outcome of the milds moducers' meeting in Costa Rica. Dealers feit that the decision to form a marketiog company and establish a fund to enable producers to withhold their coffee from the market was another show of strength by producers in their effort to maintain high price levels. A keen speculative buying interest was evident for most of the session but after the initial rise, dealer selling and profit-taking limited the advance.

However, further speculative support was attracted in the afternoon and prices recorded steadier. Arabica held steady with e slight improvement in interest on both sides being maintained.

The movement stemmed from an easier nearby situation with talk

The movement stemmed from an easier nearby situation with talk of a further stock increase this week coupled with e drying up of huying interest noted in premarket. While some quarters reported East and West German demand, most dealers said the physical market was quiet. Trade sources continued to assess the implications of the oew pricing policy announced by Copper Range in the United States on Wednesday. Some quarters still felt the move to be slightly bearisb. The market continued easier in the afternoon following early New York advices which triggered off liquidation and stop loss selling.

In curb dealings, however, prices rallied on some late covering interest and three mouths finished at £1,240 compared with £1,233 last

Part-time WOMEN INTERVIEWERS

Do you live in Greater London and want to be an interviewer working irregular, part-time hours and have your travelling time end expenses paid?

Many of our interviewers are married women with domestic commitments that prevent them from taking a full time job working the same set hours week after week. (Actually they never work the same days and hours two weeks running in this job!) They are trained to carry out interviews with a cross section of the public on a variety of government social and economic surveys, so rarely find life dull.

Applicants should be female and between 20 and 45 years of age and have a good educational background. They should be available to work not less than 24 hours a week Work is fee paid on an hourty basis end travelling time and expenses are paid.
